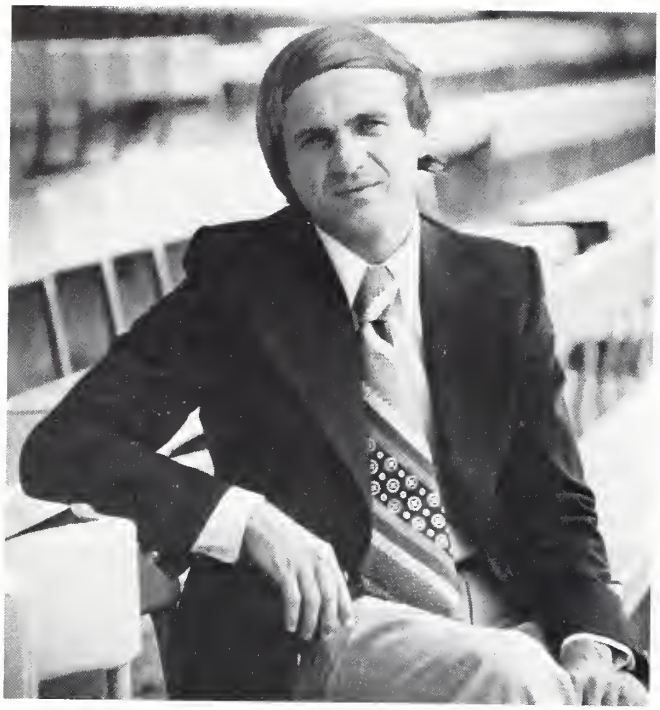
otball Bluebook



Football Saturdays have always been very special days in Chapel Hill. The glamour and pageantry of the college game give a magical touch to our autumn afternoons. Our Saturdays have become even more vibrant since Bill Dooley came to town nine years ago. Under his direction, the Tar Heels have raced to new heights on the football field. Interest is at an all-time high as Dooley and his men in Carolina Blue prepare for a new season.

The purpose of this brochure is to serve as a guide for the upcoming fall. The information in this book is presented honestly, but with a tinge of optimism. Despite a young team and a rugged schedule, there are high hopes for another successful season. One thing is certain -- whenever the Tar Heels take the field, there will be plenty of excitement. We invite you to be a part of it.

Press / Radio / TV

Carolina's football Tar Heels have one of the largest press followings in the nation and interest is growing greater every year.

Every North Carolina daily covers the Tar Heel games in Kenan Stadium. Each Tuesday during the season, most of the leading newsmen attend a press luncheon at the Pines Restaurant which features Coach Bill Dooley. As many as eight radio and TV stations make tapes with the coach at these luncheons.

Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be secured by contacting Rick Brewer in the Sports Information Office. Requests are screened with care to insure a working press box. Children, wives, husbands and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the Football Writers Association of America.

There are no Western Union facilities in the press box. The Athletic Department does furnish a number of telephones for writers to use in moving their copy. The Carolina Sports Information Office has only one telecopier, but it is available on a first-come, first-serve basis to all writers after each game.

It is strongly suggested, however, that if at all possible, newsmen covering games in Kenan Stadium bring their own telecopier. The Sports Information Office will have someone available to move copy for all writers.

Over 60 radio stations in three states will once again carry the Tar Heel Football Network. The Network is operated by the G. H. Johnston Company of New York City with Richard Frick as the director. Woody Durham, the popular sportscaster at WFMY-TV in Greensboro, will handle the play-by-play.

For the ninth consecutive year, the Bill Dooley Show will be televised across the state of North Carolina each Sunday. Durham serves as emcee on this program.

Bill Dooley

The man who has lifted the University of North Carolina back to national football prominence and who has actually taken the Atlantic Coast Conference along with him is Bill Dooley, one of the most dynamic, young coaches in America today.

In eight years on the Carolina campus, Dooley has guided the Tar Heels to their greatest heights in football history. He has taken the Tar Heels to bowl games in four of the past five years and his 1972 team had Carolina's winningest season ever, posting an 11-1 record.

When he came to Chapel Hill prior to the 1967 season, Dooley vowed to build a winner. However, he also said it would take time. His timetable proved to be a short one.

Caught with slim material in his first two seasons, his teams won only five games. Then came a 5-5 break-even season in 1969 and Dooley's program was on its way. Since then, except for a disappointing 1973 campaign, Dooley has had his teams nationally-ranked and in bowl games every year.

His success in just eight years is amazing. He now has 49 career victories at Carolina and is closing in on Carl Snavely's all-time high of 58. Snavely's victories covered a 10-year span.

Dooley has had more winning seasons in eight years (four) than Carolina had in the previous 22 years combined. In fact, only Snavely, who took the Tar Heels to three bowls, can come close to rivalling Dooley's success in Chapel Hill.

Dooley's teams have now won 38 of their last 55 regular season games. No other coach in the history of the conference has taken four ACC teams to bowl games.

In fact, in the last five years, only Bear Bryant of Alabama, Shug Jordan of Auburn, Bill Battle of Tennessee and Darrell Royal of Texas have gone to more bowl games than Dooley.

Carolina's post-season appearances came in the 1970 Peach Bowl, the 1971 Gator Bowl and the Sun Bowl in 1972 and 1974.

In a stretch of games between 1970 and 1972, Carolina won a record 15 consecutive ACC games and two league titles.

Dooley's success at Carolina has been shared by the people around him. Two of his assistants, Lee Hayley and Clyde Walker, went from the Tar Heel program to jobs as athletic directors at Auburn and Kansas. Two other former aides, Bobby Collins and Bud Moore, are now head coaches at Southern Mississippi and Kansas.

Three of Dooley's players have been consensus All-Americans—tailback Don McCauley in 1970, guard Ron Rusnak in 1972 and guard Ken Huff in 1974. Since 1970, Carolina has had more All-ACC players than any other school in the league.

Because of Dooley, the entire ACC is getting a new national image in football.

Former Virginia Coach Don Lawrence summed it up best when he said: "The entire Atlantic Coast Conference is tougher now than it has ever been. I hate to admit it, but Bill Dooley is responsible for it all. He came into this league and worked around the clock to build a fine program. Now everyone else has started working overtime to catch up. Dooley turned ACC football around."

The Dooley magic worked again for the Tar Heels last season. They scored seven victories in 11 games and beat all of their state rivals—Duke, North Carolina State and Wake Forest. This team earned a trip to the Sun Bowl where it lost in a thriller to Mississippi State by 26-24.

Head Coach

Dooley admits that being a head coach deprives him of the biggest fun in coaching. "What I miss most is getting on my hands and knees and giving individual instructions to the players," he says. "A head coach is busy directing the overall program and has to leave that to the assistants. I miss it because I always liked to get in the trenches with the men."

Dooley was a "trench fighter" and a player of extraordinary ability when he attended Mississippi State in the 1950s. He was an all-star guard at State and was the outstanding lineman in the Shrine Bowl at Miami, Fla., his senior season.

Following graduation from Mississippi State, Dooley went into the coaching field. He coached first as an assistant at Mississippi State, serving as line coach for two years and head freshman coach for three seasons. During his three years as coach of the Mississippi State freshmen, Dooley's teams never lost to Ole Miss, the biggest rival.

Dooley went to George Washington in 1961 under former Carolina star player Jim Camp. He stayed there for two seasons and then returned to Mississippi State in 1963, where as offensive line coach, he helped guide the Maroons into the Liberty Bowl game against N. C. State.

When Vince Dooley was named the head coach at Georgia in 1964, his first act was to name his brother, Bill, as head of the offense. Vince and Bill had been extremely close when they grew up in Mobile, Ala., and although their college and coaching careers had taken them in different paths, it was almost inevitable that they would wind up together.

The two brothers restored Georgia to football prominence. The Bulldogs went to bowl games two of the three years Bill was on the staff, compiling a record of 22 victories against nine losses and a tie.

Dooley learned his lessons well in the rugged Southeastern Conference because he has been beating teams from that conference with great regularity since he came to Carolina. In 12 games, Carolina has whipped the SEC eight times. Dooley has lost to Vanderbilt and Florida one each, to Georgia in the 1971 Gator Bowl and to Mississippi State in the Sun Bowl last year.

He believes in hard-nosed football and will tell you, "As a team, you're nothing if you can't run the football on an opponent. You've got to be able to knock people down and run over them. It's a game for men. You've got to out-tough people to beat them."

While Dooley is a tough-minded coach, you never would be able to tell it if you met him off the field. He's an extremely likeable young man who mixes well with people from all walks of life. He's just as much at home with a shoe shine boy as he is with a college professor, many of whom he counts among his personal friends.

Dooley has made a tremendous hit with Tar Heel fans. They give him standing ovations at Tar Heel club meetings and they stand in line to shake his hand and wish him well.

Dooley is in constant demand for speaking engagements, and he lectures at clinics across the country. His summer football camp for youngsters is a tremendous success on the Carolina campus.

When he's not working (and that's not often), Dooley can be found hitting a tennis ball or casting for fish. He's very good at both sports and is just as competitive as he is on the football field.

The Coach and his lovely wife, Chris, have two sons, Jim and Billy.

Ferebee Taylor Chancellor

Athletic teams at the University of North Carolina are fortunate in having N. Ferebee Taylor as one of their most enthusiastic fans.

Being chancellor at one of America's great universities is a busy and often frantic job. Yet Chancellor Taylor always finds time to attend most of the major sports activities on campus.

Win, lose or draw, the Chancellor is one of the first visitors to the Carolina dressing room after every game. He chats individually with the players, congratulating them on their performances.

"Chancellor Taylor is a firm believer in intercollegiate athletics," says Tar Heel Coach Bill Dooley. "He has given great support to our program. He knows the game well and respects the young men who play it for Carolina."

The Chancellor feels that the Athletic Department is an important part of the total University and expresses a hope that all students will make use of what it offers, either as participants or as spectators.

"At the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, we will continue to strive for excellence in our Athletic Department just as we will in all other departments," the Chancellor says.

Chancellor Taylor is a graduate of Carolina, receiving an A.B. in American History in 1942. He was the first Jackson Scholar here (this scholarship was the first four-year grant) and he served as president of Phi Beta Kappa, making straight A's for three consecutive years.

He was president of the University Club, speaker of the Student Legislature and a member of the Order of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail.

The Chancellor served in the Navy during World War II and reached the rank of lieutenant. After being released from active duty, he entered the Harvard Law School and received the LL.B. cum laude in 1949.

He then enrolled in Balliol College at Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar, receiving his B.A. in philosophy, politics and economics in 1951. He received his M.A. from Oxford in 1955.

Chancellor Taylor then practiced law in New York City until returning to Carolina in the spring of 1968 as a visiting professor at the UNC Law School.

He was named administrative vice-president of the Consolidated University in 1970 and served in that position until being unanimously selected by the Board of Trustees as the new Chancellor. He replaced J. Carlyle Sitterson.

In his administrative job with the Consolidated University, the Chancellor had served as a legal advisor and had acted as a liaison between the Board of Trustees and its committees.

Since assuming his present position, Chancellor Taylor has placed special emphasis on the public service aspect of the University. Many short courses, workshops and special projects have been organized, serving the entire state of North Carolina and its five-and-a-half-million people, as well as the students and residents of the University community.

Chancellor Taylor is married to the former Louise C. Ellington. They have three daughters—Louise, 22; Sarah, 18; and Martha, 15.

Homer Rice Athletic Director

One of the nation's most highly respected athletic administrators is Homer Rice, director of athletics at the University of North Carolina.

Now in his seventh year at the Tar Heel helm, Rice has a long record of achievements and has his eye on the future as he strives to keep Carolina among the top collegiate powers in the nation.

One of Rice's highest honors came just last year when he was inducted into the International Churchman's Sports Hall of Fame and was named collegiate administrator of the year. He joined an elite group of athletes in that Hall of Fame.

But being at the top is nothing new to Homer Rice. He has been a winner in everything he has undertaken. He revolutionized football offenses with the triple option during his coaching career and now has gained fame in a different way as an administrator.

For three years in a row (1971-73), Rice directed Carolina to the Carmichael Cup, the award symbolic of overall athletic excellence in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Carolina has finished a close second in the Carmichael race for the last two years.

Since he has been at Carolina, Rice has brought about more than 30 additions and improvements to athletic facilities, has helped push Carolina among the national leaders in fund-raising for athletic scholarships and has charted the course for future success.

Rice credits much of his success to a personal motivation program he has conceived. He is currently working on a manuscript entitled "The Attitude Technique." This work will contain his ideas for organization, management and motivation for athletic coaching and administration. He recently conducted a seminar on this subject at the Management Institute of the National Association of Collegiate Athletic Directors.

Rice is a strong believer in the total athletic program. This is evident by Carolina's improved showing in recent years in the non-revenue sports. Carolina has a 21-sport varsity program for men and women, one of the largest in the United States. Rice incidentally has put special emphasis in his time here in upgrading athletics for UNC women.

"We invite every student on the Carolina campus to be a part of our program," Rice says, "either as a participant or as a follower of our teams. Traditionally, Carolina has had fantastic school spirit and this, in a large measure, has been responsible for the success of our teams."

Despite his busy schedule in Chapel Hill, Rice finds time to serve in other capacities on the national intercollegiate level. He is a member of the NCAA's prestigious television committee, is involved with the U. S. Congress as a member of a joint committee on education and athletics and serves on various other national committees. He also is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of America.

Rice is only the third man to head the Carolina athletic program in more than 50 years. The late Coach Bob Fetzer was the first, serving from 1922 to 1951. Chuck Erickson succeeded him and held the job until his retirement in mid-1968.

A native of Ft. Thomas, Ky., Rice is the son of a Methodist minister. After serving with the Navy in the Pacific in World War II, he attended Centre College and made the Little All-America team as a football quarterback. He received an A.B. degree from Centre and B.S. and M.E. degrees from Eastern Kentucky State College.

Following his graduation, Rice played professional baseball for three seasons in the old Brooklyn Dodgers' chain. Then he began his career as a football coach.

He coached at Wartburg Central High in Tennessee, Spring City High in Tennessee and Highlands High in Kentucky. In 1961 he received an award as "The Winningest Football Coach in America." His high school coaching record was a fantastic 101-9-7.

Rice then went into college coaching and performed the same kind of magic. He was the top assistant coach at the University of Kentucky and then at the University of Oklahoma where he coached an explosive offensive machine.

In 1967 he was named head coach at the University of Cincinnati and immediately changed the Bearcats' football fortunes. His 1968 team was so explosive that it led the nation in pass offense. It was during this period that his theories on the triple option made him a much-sought-after speaker and instructor.

A book published in 1973, "Homer Rice on Triple Option Football," has drawn raves from football enthusiasts across the country. He has authored two other books on football. The first, "How To Organize Football Practice," was published in 1962 with the other, "The Explosive Short T," coming in 1963.

When Rice does find a few free moments in Chapel Hill, he devotes them to his community. He is on the administrative board of the University Methodist Church and in 1972 was campaign chairman of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Community Chest drive.

He is also on the national conference staff of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Rice wrote the Huddle Prayer for the Pop Warner Little Scholars National Program.

Rice is married to the former Phyllis Wardrup of Middleboro, Ky. They have three lovely daughters. Nancy, 24, is married to Steve Hetherington and they have a young son, Ryce. The other girls are Phyllis, 22, and Angela, 19.

Prospectus

Despite the loss of 22 seniors from last year's Sun Bowl team, the North Carolina Tar Heels are optimistic that 1975 will be another banner season on the football field.

Coach Bill Dooley's men in Carolina Blue posted a fine 7-4 record a year ago, earning their fourth bowl invitation in five seasons. The Tar Heels dropped a narrow 26-24 decision to powerful Mississippi State in a Sun Bowl thriller at El Paso.

But now, it's a new season with plenty of new challenges. Although the Tar Heels were hit hard by graduation, there is a solid nucleus of returning players around which Dooley can build his 1975 team.

Heading the list of returnees are two dynamic tailbacks, James (Boom Boom) Betterson and Mike Voight, both of whom rushed for more than 1,000 yards last season. It marked the first time in football history that two players alternating at the same position topped the 1,000 mark.

Betterson, a senior from High Point, N. C., had 1,082 yards and a 5.2 yards-per-carry average. Voight, a junior from Chesapeake, Va., finished with 1,033 yards and a 5.1 average. Dooley ranks them as two of the best players in America and as top all-star candidates.

In addition to those tailbacks, two other returning players also figure to be strong candidates for all-star honors. They are center Mark Cantrell, a 235-pound junior who developed into a tremendous blocker last year, and defensive tackle Rod Broadway, a 250-pound junior with great quickness and strength.

Altogether, the Tar Heels return nine players who were starters during the latter part of 1974. They are Betterson, Cantrell, Broadway, offensive tackle Mark Griffin, defensive end Bill Perdue, linebacker Billy Murphy and defensive backs Russ Conley, Ronny Johnson and Bobby Trott.

While six of the returning starters are defensive players, it is on defense that Carolina must show the most improvement. The Tar Heels gave up a lot of points last season and put special emphasis on defense during spring drills.

Other key players on defense could be end Chuck Austin; linebackers Bobby Gay and Ronnie Dowdy; linemen Dee Hardison, Duke Thompson, Jeff Jones and Brian Hughes; and backs Francis Winters, Alan Caldwell and Jeff Caldwell. Seven of those 10 players are sophomores.

"We feel we have good young talent on defense," says Dooley. "We've just got to play with more consistency there. And while we emphasized defense in the spring, it's actually on offense that we face the biggest rebuilding job."

Only three starters are back from last year's offensive unit, which may have been the most explosive in Tar Heel history. Among the losses are three brilliant backs—quarterback Chris Kupec, who set a new NCAA pass percentage record; fullback Dickie Oliver, a key blocker in Carolina's ground game; and the sensational pass-catching wingback Jimmy Jerome.

The quarterback race is wide open. The leading contender is Billy Paschall, a senior who was Kupec's back-up last fall. Paschall missed spring practice because of his participation in baseball, however, and will have to make rapid progress this fall.

The other candidates are all sophomores—Johnny Stratton, Johnny Elam and Bernie Menapace. None of the three has ever been in a varsity game, giving Paschall a big edge in experience.

Brian Smith, who saw limited action last season, has the inside track for the fullback post. However, he will be pushed for that job by promising newcomers Larry Tedder and Tony Mills. Charlie Williams, who played behind Jerome last year, should be the starter at wingback.

Betterson and Voight ran behind one of the best blocking lines in college football last fall. This year's line will be, for the most part, green and untested. Gone are such notables as consensus All-America guard Ken Huff; All-America tight end Charles Waddell; guard David Barrett, tackle John Frerotte and split end Pat Norton.

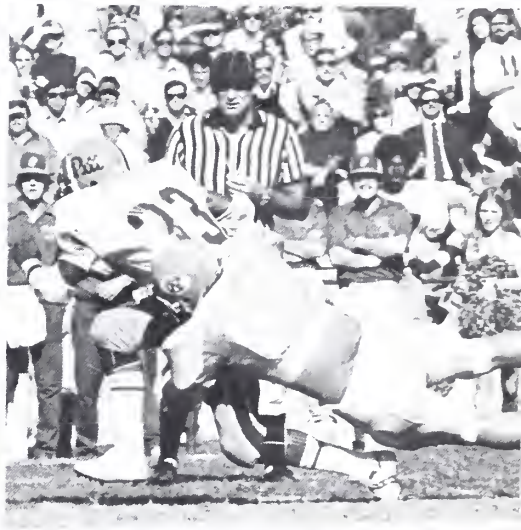
Expected to join Cantrell and Griffin in the line are guards Craig Funk and Scott Davison; tackle Tommy Burkett; split end Ray Stanford; and one of three tight ends—Mike Corbin, Mike Finn or Brooks Williams. Only Stanford is a senior.

Replacements must also be found for place-kicker Ellis Alexander and punter Dale Lydecker.

Dooley has always placed great emphasis on senior leadership. That may be more important than ever this year because of the team's great youth. It is conceivable that only four seniors will be in the starting lineup—Betterson, Paschall, Stanford and Trott.

"Much of our success will depend on how quickly our young players mature," says Dooley. "We will be looking to our incoming freshmen for help at several positions. The bad thing about having a young team this particular year is the fact that we are faced with the toughest schedule any Carolina team has had in my time in Chapel Hill."

In addition to their six Atlantic Coast Conference rivals, the Tar Heels will also face William & Mary and East Carolina, the top two teams in the Southern Conference; Tulane, one of the strongest independents in the South; and perennial powers Notre Dame and Ohio State, who should contend for the national championship.



Carolina Style FOOTBALL

Goal Line Analysis

ENDS

A lack of experience will be the main problem at the end positions. There is excellent talent here, but it is green and untested. The top two tight ends of last season, Charles Waddell and Andy Chacos, have graduated. Also gone is split end Pat Norton. All three were brilliant receivers and good leaders. Mike Corbin, the number three tight end last fall, has the inside track for that starting spot. He is being pushed, however, by two sensational young prospects, Mike Finn and Brooks Williams. All three are sure to see plenty of action. Ray Stanford, who backed up Norton a year ago, is the top candidate for the split end post. Mike Dutchak, Dwight Ange and Walker Lee are his main competition.

TACKLES

A lack of depth makes this position somewhat of a question mark. Mark Griffin and Tommy Burkett give Carolina two sound starters, but none of the reserves have ever been in a varsity game. Griffin and Burkett split playing time at left tackle last season. Both have outstanding potential. Griffin has added some weight in the off-season and could develop into one of the ACC's best linemen. Burkett, the biggest man on the squad at 266 pounds, has been shifted to right tackle and appears headed for a fine season. One of the most impressive newcomers in spring practice was Billy Guthrie, who was pushing Burkett for the right tackle slot. Other players who could see action are Chip Smith and Danny Hamrick.

GUARDS

Both starters from last year, David Barrett and All-America Ken Huff, have graduated. The only player with any experience at guard is Craig Funk, a junior who started a couple of games while Barrett was injured. He doesn't have tremendous size, but is quick and determined. Best bet to start at the other guard is Scott Davison, who was red-shirted last season as a center. He was shifted to guard in the spring and showed good promise. Bill Span, Ron Fowler, Rocky Fletcher and Billy Dunn are in contention for the backup positions. Another possibility is Scott Hoxby, a transfer from Tampa University.

CENTER

Mark Cantrell gives Carolina one of the best centers in the college game. He had a brilliant sophomore season. Mark, a junior from Atlanta, Ga., did not grade poorly in a single game. Now he looms as a legitimate All-America candidate. Two young players, Tommy Smith and Phil Ragazzo, should battle for the top back-up spot. Deke Andrews, who has handled Carolina's long snaps for three seasons, will once again perform those duties for the Tar Heels.

BACKS

Three starters from last year's explosive backfield are gone, but Carolina does return James (Boom Boom) Betterson and Mike Voight at tailback. They should give the Tar Heels the best one-two punch in America at their position. Speedy Mel Collins and veteran Tommy Woodard should be the top reserves. Four players are battling for Chris Kupec's quarterback spot. They are senior Billy Paschall and sophomores Johnny Stratton, Johnny Elam and Bernie Menapace. Brian Smith is the leading candidate for Dickie Oliver's old fullback job with two promising newcomers, Tony Mills and Larry Tedder, also in the picture. Charlie Williams, who backed up Jimmy Jerome at wingback last season, will move into a starting role at that position. Billy Mabry, Roc Bauman and Collins could also be used there.

ENDS

Bill Perdue and Chuck Austin give Carolina a good pair of starters at end, but depth will be a big problem here. Perdue, a junior from Roanoke, Va., started every game last season, while Austin, a junior from Naruna, Va., was the chief reserve and played a great deal. Gone is Ted Elkins, a two-year starter at end, who was voted Carolina's best defensive lineman last season. Perdue is a smart and consistent player with great strength. Austin has good quickness and agility and could be a big-play man in the Tar Heel defense. The only reserve here is Stanley Lancaster, a sophomore who shows good promise. Other back-up help will probably come from incoming freshmen.

TACKLES

The Tar Heels do not have as much game experience as they would like at tackle, but there is good talent here. Rod Broadway, a 250-pound junior from Oakboro, N. C., should be one of the best players in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He has size, strength and speed. Sophomore Dee Hardison is the other likely starter. He saw action as a freshman last season and has the potential to be a big star. Junior Duke Thompson and sophomore Bill McCollough ended spring practice as the top reserves. Thompson saw only limited action last year, but had an impressive spring. Another key player here is Brian Hughes. He was injured in the South Carolina game last year and missed all of spring practice. He should be 100 per cent this fall and could challenge for a starting spot.

GUARDS

Gone is Ronnie Robinson, an All-ACC selection last season, and he will be difficult to replace. Ronnie had good size at 260 pounds and excellent quickness. Despite his weight, he made plays all over the field from his middle guard position. Two true sophomores are the leading contenders for the starting nod. They are Jeff Jones of Woodstown, N. J., and Lee Geiselman of Canton, Ohio. Both got some playing time last season, but don't have a great deal of experience. They also lack Robinson's size. This position might be the biggest question mark in the Carolina defense.

LINEBACKERS

Good talent, but a lack of experience, sums up Carolina's situation at linebacker. Tom Embrey and Gary Cowan, who started most of the games last fall, have graduated. The top returnees are junior Billy Murphy and a pair of sophomores, Bobby Gay and Ronnie Dowdy. Murphy played well last season, but missed all of spring practice. Gay also saw a great deal of action last fall and made good progress in the spring. He should be headed for a big season. Dowdy has all the physical tools to be an outstanding linebacker. He just lacks experience. Another player who could figure into the picture here is Patty DeStefano, a junior college transfer. Other possibilities are Marty Reid, David Parham and Barry Jarvis.

BACKS

With three returning starters from last year, the secondary should be improved this season. The only missing starter, Jimmy DeRatt, will be difficult to replace, however. He was an outstanding athlete. Juniors Russ Conley, who has had two years of experience, and Ronny Johnson return at cornerback. Johnson had a fine spring and could be one of the better defensive backs in the ACC this year. Bobby Trott, a senior, is back at one safety spot. Of the newcomers, Francis Winters and Alan Caldwell were the most impressive in the spring. Both have good speed and quickness and will see action. Another possibility is Jeff Caldwell, who saw limited playing time with the varsity as a freshman last year. Other candidates are Tom Catafygiotu, John Daw, Scott Batchelor, Wade Thornton and Jeff Head.

Tar Heels Profiles

James Betterson

Q. How do you see your role as one of the few seniors on Carolina's football team?

A. This year is certainly going to be a lot different from ones in the past. Coach Dooley expects a lot of senior leadership, but we have very few seniors on this team. Because of that, I think I'm going to be obligated to take a larger burden of the leadership role. In fact, Bobby Trott and I may be the only seniors in the starting line-up. I think one of our main jobs will be to make the younger players realize we will need their help in the leadership area if we are to have a successful season.

Q. What are your goals for the upcoming season?

A. I'd really like to have a dynamite year. Last year I got 1,000 yards rushing and I'm going to shoot for 1,500 this season. I believe that would be a great year. That might seem impossible with our system of using two tailbacks, but I think I can do it. If things had gone right, I could have been around 1,300 last year. I started out well, but then I came up with some bumps and bruises that slowed me down a step or two. I had games where I gained 80 or 90 yards when I could have been getting 130 or 140. I never really put it all together like I should have.

Q. Have you tried to pattern your running style after any particular player?

A. Sometimes I've thought about the way great backs run—the things I should do or shouldn't do if I want to be in their class. But it really boils down to this: when they give you the ball, you've got to do your own thing. There's no time to think about what somebody else might do. You've got to react instinctively.

Q. What has been your most exciting moment at Carolina?

A. It's hard to pick out one particular moment, but I was very excited the week following our first game last year against Ohio University. I was picked National Back of the Week for that game and a lot of good things happened to me because of that. That was really the first time I had received a lot of recognition.

Q. How do you keep in shape during the off-season?

A. I try to do something every day, even if it's nothing but running a mile. Sometimes I might play basketball or lift weights. I try to do a lot of different things.

The Comb

Game By Game With Betterson and Voight

Carolina's dynamic duo of James (Boom Boom) Betterson and Mike Voight accomplished a rare football feat last season when both players gained more than 1,000 yards rushing.

It marked only the fifth time in history that two backs on the same team hit the 1,000 mark. The amazing thing about their accomplishments is the fact that they play the same position. The two are never on the field at the same time as they alternate at tailback in Bill Dooley's I-formation. Never in history had two players alternating at one position gained 1,000 yards.

Betterson finished the season with 1,082 yards, averaging 5.2 yards per carry. Voight had 1,033 yards and a 5.1 average.

The other four pair of players who have each rushed for 1,000 yards are Billy Vessels and Buck McPhil of Oklahoma in 1952; Gregg Pruitt and Jack Mildren of Oklahoma in 1971; Joe Washington and Waymon Clark of Oklahoma in 1973; and Woody Green and Ben Malone of Arizona State in 1973.

Q. What is the most important thing that athletics has done for you?

A. Up to this point, the most important thing is that it's gotten me a college education. I don't know if I would have gotten one without football. Athletics has also given me determination to succeed because I now realize I could make a profession out of football.

Mike Voight

Q. Last year you rushed for over 1,000 yards. Do you think you can do it again?

A. I hope so. I belive both Boom Boom and I can get 1,000 if the new offensive line jells. We're going to miss Ken Huff at guard, but I think we have the potential for another solid line. I also must stay healthy. I've had some minor injuries, but I've been fortunate enough to have never missed a game. I'll have to play every game if I hope to get 1,000.

Q. How do you feel about alternating at tailback?

A. I feel comfortable about it. I feel privileged to play, to be a co-starter. If we were on another team which just used one tailback, Boom would be starting and I would not see as much action. It also helps sometimes to be on the sidelines. I can watch the defense and pick up techniques from Boom.

Q. You are an accomplished hurdler. Has track helped you be a better football player?

A. It's helped me relax, to get over the tensions of football. It's also helped me keep in shape in the off-season and not get fat. And it's probably helped my speed some, too.

Q. In the last few years many teams have begun using the triple option, the wishbone or some variation. Yet Carolina has continually had great success offensively with the power-I. What are your views on different formations?

A. Everybody has his own techniques and ideas and Coach Dooley certainly has his. The power-I has been good to us. But if you have the people, any formation will work. Good players make the formation successful, not vice versa.

Q. Does emotion play a big part in being a football player?

A. I think the key is pride, more than emotion. Of course, you have to play with emotion. But the winners are usually the ones who have pride in themselves and their team.

Q. How did you first get interested in football?

A. It's always been a part of my life. My two older brothers played the game and I just naturally picked it up. Both of my brothers, by the way, were exceptional players.

Q. How do you view the upcoming Carolina season?

A. I think it will be tough because we are playing a very difficult schedule. But I think we have the potential for a winning season.

Mark Cantrell

Q. How much help was it to room and play with Ken Huff, Carolina's All-America guard, last season?

A. It was a tremendous help to me. He and I talked a lot about different techniques and situations. And I learned a great deal just by playing alongside him.

Q. Is an offensive lineman really able to help the man playing next to him?

A. When the player is Ken Huff, it's very easy for him to be a help. But I've found that's generally true. You talk with the other linemen and find out what the men across from them are doing on certain plays. That's a big help because a lot of times you'll be double-teaming a defender and it's nice to know how he's going to react.

Q. Do you feel any added pressure going into this season, knowing you'll be the veteran of the offensive line?

A. Some, but I know the people in our line will be capable of doing the job. They haven't played much, but there is no question of their ability. We may be shaky at first because of the inexperience, but we'll come around. Remember, last year people said our line was going to be inexperienced and it turned out to be a pretty good one. I think the same thing can happen again.

Q. What's the most difficult thing about playing center?

A. Sometimes you have to make certain calls at the line of scrimmage that everybody can hear. That's often difficult to do because of the crowd noise. In fact, last year I was so nervous early in the year that I had to turn around and ask the quarterback what the snap count was.

Q. Many people feel the center has the most difficult job in the offensive line because he has to snap the ball in addition to blocking. How do you feel about that?

A. I think all the other linemen have just as important a job as I do. Football is a team sport and no one individual position is more important than any other. A team has to get good play from every position if it is to succeed.

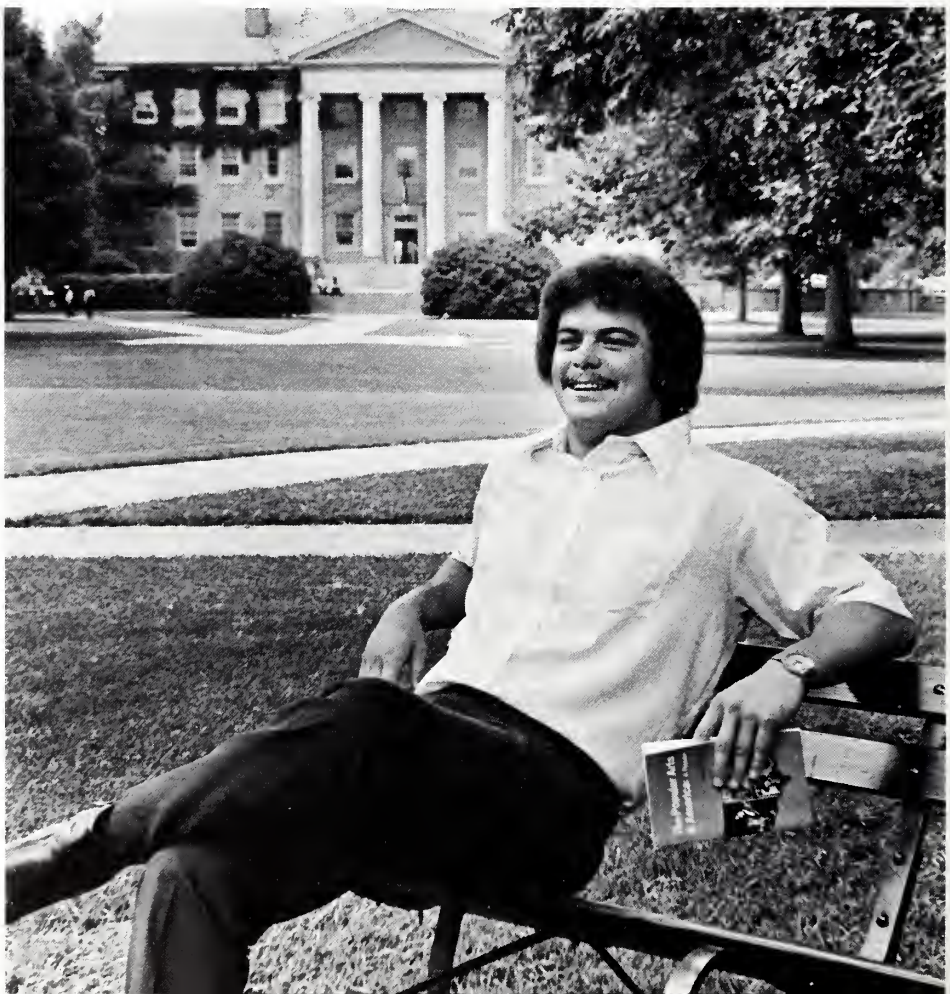
Q. What is the most frustrating thing about playing offense?

A. As far as an offensive lineman is concerned, I guess the most frustrating thing is to play well and not get any recognition. Often you can see a back break off a long run and although you know he couldn't have done it without the line, he gets all the credit. All the players know it, but the fans don't. Don't get me wrong, the backs deserve a lot of credit, but it is often frustrating for the linemen to have to wait until the films have been graded to get their praise.

Q. You've mentioned that the linemen can make the backs look good. Can that work the other way?

A. Certainly. It's especially true in our case because we have two great runners in Boom Boom Betterson and Mike Voight. They are super players. If we can just give them a small hole, they'll make it bigger on their own. It's like I said earlier, football is a team game. Everybody has to help everybody else.

Cantrell relaxes on the Carolina Campus.



Rod Broadway

Q. What is the most difficult part of a defensive tackle's job?

A. The most difficult part is the mental aspect with the actual techniques of playing the position coming second. Getting in the right frame of mind is extremely difficult to do. We have live contact every day. That's not true at the other positions. You have to be mentally ready to face that.

Q. Carolina has now been in the 5-2 defense for a full year. Do you like this defensive alignment?

A. Yes. I never really got that involved when we were playing the 4-4. I had played the 5-2 in high school and liked it. The tackles are more involved in the action in the 5-2. You have a chance to make more plays.

Q. Is football fun?

A. If it wasn't, I wouldn't be playing. There is some work to it, but on the whole football is very enjoyable.

Q. What appeals to you the most about the game?

A. Winning. But, of course, that's not the only thing. I've met people, whom I never would have met, and travelled to places I would have never seen except for football. Those two things, meeting people and travelling, are certainly appealing aspects of the game to me.

Q. What is the toughest thing about playing college football?

A. You have to stay in tip-top shape the year round and that's hard to do. Mental toughness is the key to that. In fact, you have to prepare yourself mentally before you do physically in almost every aspect of football.

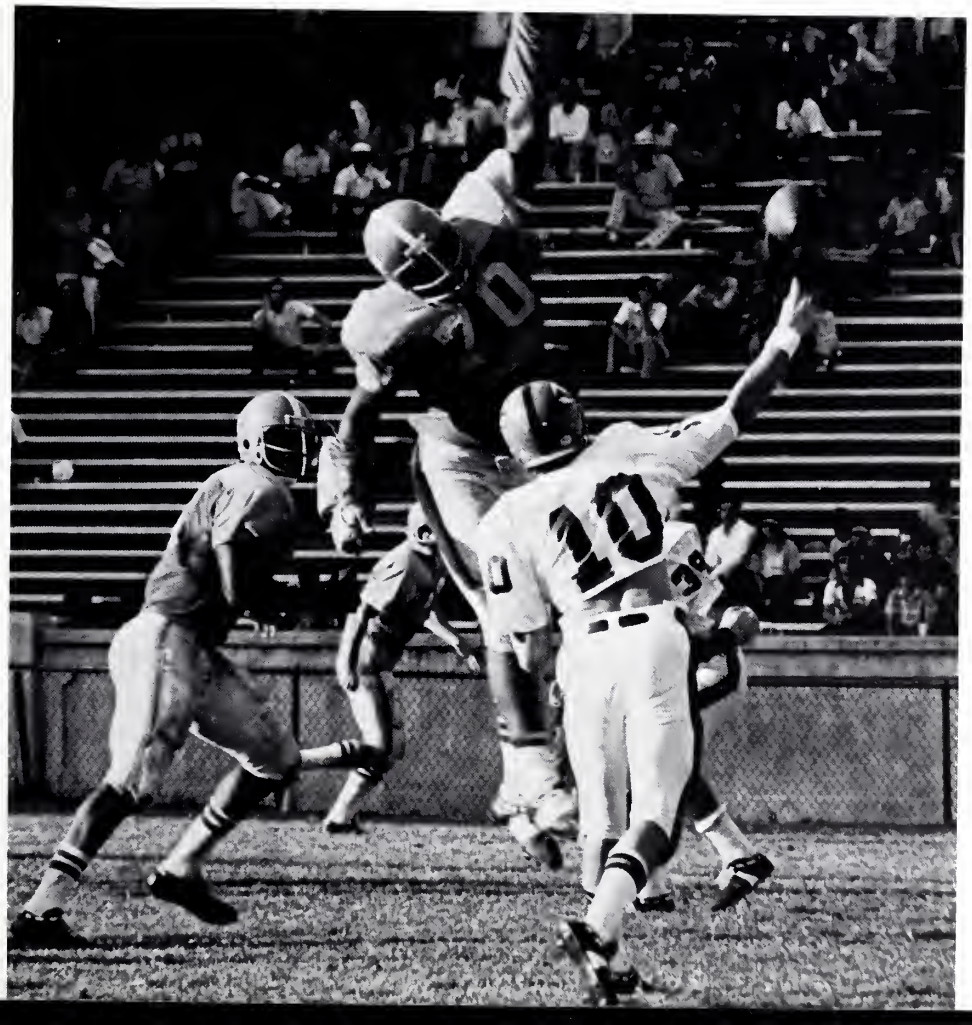
Q. Do you ever have a weight problem?

A. Sometimes. I try to report to fall practice about 10 pounds lighter than my playing weight and then add those 10 pounds through the season. Because of the heat, I feel a lot better and move easier in the summer without those extra pounds. But when the season starts you need them because it gets tough down in the pit.

Q. Do you have any individual goals for the upcoming season?

A. Most of my goals are team-oriented. I would like for us to win the ACC championship and have a winning season. If we do that, the individual honors will take care of themselves.

Broadway corners a quarterback.



Johnson on the move.

Q. What do you enjoy about playing defense?

A. You're in more of the action on defense. It's more of a challenge and there's certainly more pressure than on offense.

Q. Why is there more pressure?

A. We have to stop the other team's offense. If we don't, there is no way we can win. When you're on offense, you can make an error and it might not hurt the team too much. But when you make a mistake on defense, especially in the secondary, it's usually a very costly one.

Q. What is the most difficult thing about playing defensive back?

A. Most of the guys I play against are usually faster than me, so that's a problem. And as I said earlier, the pressure is really tough. Mentally, it's tougher than any other position. If you make a mistake, it's probably going to cost you seven points. And there's no way to hide your mistakes in the secondary. You're in the open field where everyone can see what's happening.

Q. In what ways do you think you've improved over a year ago?

A. The big thing is I'm more experienced. I feel more at home at the position and I have a better idea of what I'm doing. Because of that, I can react better as situations arise. I played wingback my first two years here and last season was my first as a defensive back. So that experience will certainly help me.

Q. You come from a football-playing family. Were you encouraged to play football or was it a sport you picked up on your own?

A. I wasn't pushed into it; it was something I really wanted to do. I played just about every sport while growing up, but football was my favorite.

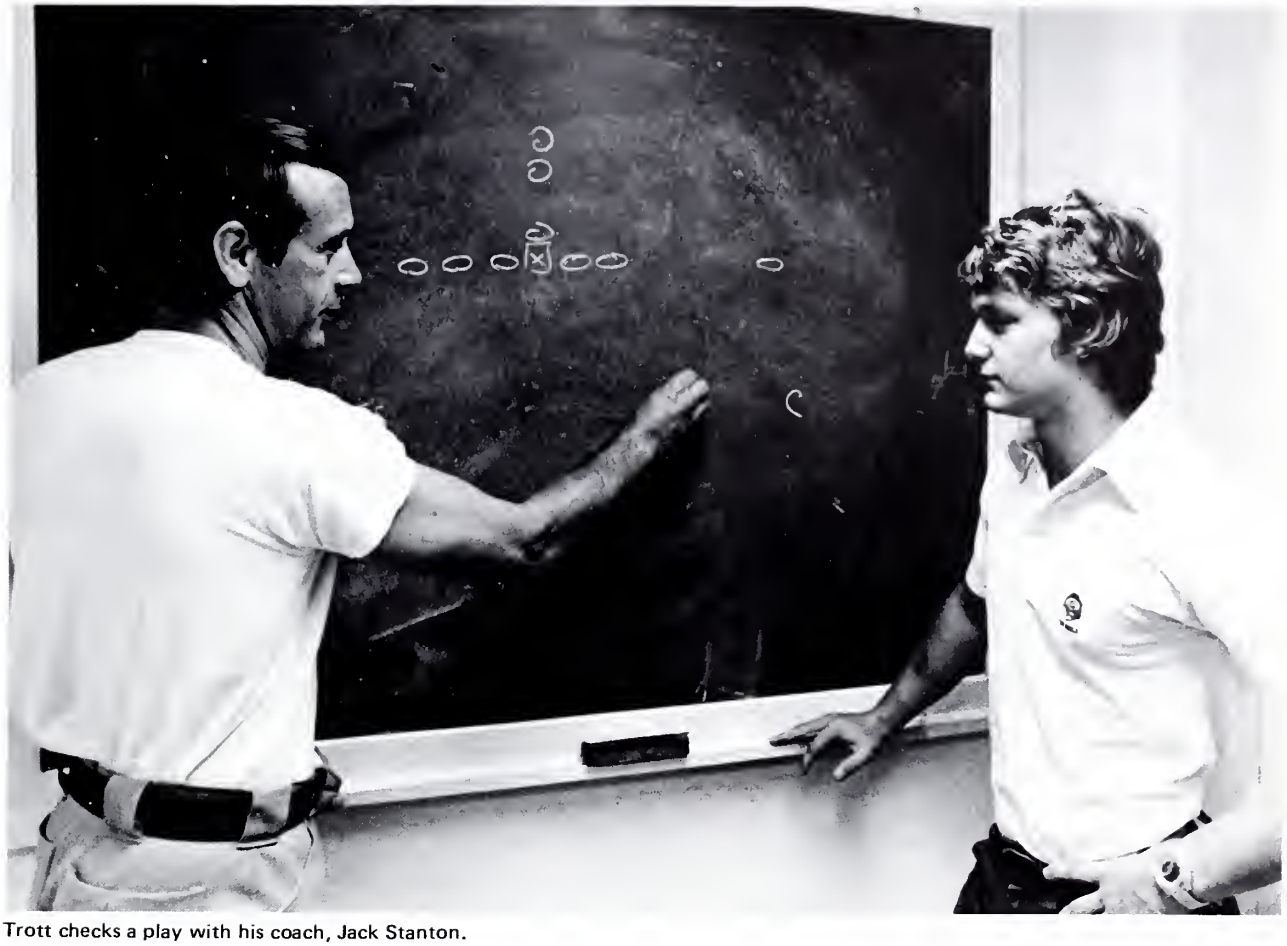
Q. Your brother Sammy was a star running back here two years ago. Was there any added pressure on you to do well since he was such a great player?

A. There was my first two years here. Everybody back home wanted to know when I was going to be as good as Sammy. That changed when I was shifted to defense, however. Now everybody wants to know what it's going to be like to play against my younger brother, Timmy, who is an offensive back at N. C. State.

Q. Football and your studies obviously take up a great deal of your time. What do you do for relaxation?

A. I try to work relaxing into my daily schedule. There is a lot of pressure on your studies and you must have time to relax because of that. I try to relax while studying—taking an hour break to get away from everything. One of my favorite methods of relaxing is to play cards. Sometimes I'll play for about an hour after practice before hitting the books.

Ronny Johnson



Trott checks a play with his coach, Jack Stanton.

Q. You came to Carolina without a scholarship. Why did you go out for football?

A. I had played the game all my life and just didn't want to give it up. I was a flanker and defensive back in high school, but was too small to attract any major scholarship offers. Like most kids growing up in this state, I had always wanted to attend Carolina. So when I got here I decided to give football a try.

Q. Was it tough being a non-scholarship player on the freshman team?

A. I had a few rough times, but that's only natural I guess. I was trying to play football, study and get adjusted to being away from home. I think all freshmen, whether they're athletes or not, have some trouble their first few weeks in college. As far as football goes, I think I was treated very fairly by the coaches.

Q. What is the most important asset a defensive back can have?

A. Intelligence. A lot of playing defensive back is simply knowing where to be and when to be there. Being a football player is not merely being big and fast , although those assets certainly help.

Q. It's been said that only a certain type of individual can be a good defensive back. Do you think that's true?

A. I think it takes a more disciplined person to play in the secondary than at other positions. When you're on the football field, it's sometimes easy to get caught up in the excitement of the game and forget what you're really supposed to be doing. But, a defensive back cannot allow that to happen. You must discipline yourself mentally to always be alert. You're the last line of the defense and cannot afford to make a mistake.

Q. Carolina gave up quite a few points last year. Do you think the Tar Heels will have a better defense this season?

A. Definitely. We'll be more experienced, especially in the secondary. We'll be in our 5-2 defense for the second year and will have more confidence in it.

Q. Do you ever get nervous before a game?

A. Sure, but I imagine most players do. The most nervous I've ever gotten was before the N. C. State game last season. I was very keyed up because I knew it was an extremely important game for us and could determine the rest of our season.

Q. How do you view your own competitive attitude?

A. I think I'm a good competitor. You have to be competitive to play football.

Bobby Trott

Q. You were a tight end as a freshman here. How did you feel about being switched to tackle the following spring?

A. I sort of had an idea I might be moved. When I was being recruited I had been told that if I got heavier I might be shifted inside. It's fun to catch the ball, but I like it where I am now.

Q. Was the transition a difficult one?

A. It wasn't as bad as it might have been for some ends. I like to block and that's mainly what I did in high school. Tackle is not as diversified as tight end; it's more specialized. There's certainly more to the position than just plain blocking though. I know I've still got a lot to learn.

Q. Offensive linemen have been called the unsung heroes of a football team. What is your opinion on this?

A. It's true in a sense. It seems like you never get credit for the things you really do well. The only time you're noticed during a game is when you make a spectacular block. But usually in those situations, the defender is off balance or already falling down when you hit him. I actually look forward to the grading of the films just to see how well I've done. The really important things are rarely noticed in the stands or the pressbox.

Q. Do you think coaching films can be a help to a player?

A. Yes. You can see every move you make and even the smallest errors show up. It's good because you can correct them, but it's bad because you know you can't get away with anything.

Q. Last year you played at about 220 pounds. Have you tried to add weight during the off-season?

A. Yes, I'd like to get up to 240. I really need the extra weight. I was skinny when I came here, weighing about 205, and I still have a long way to go. I'm 6-5, so I should be able to carry the added weight easily. I don't believe it will bother my speed or quickness. The way things were last year, I had to work hard at things that other people did easily just because they had more weight.

Q. You've played in both a three-deep and four-deep secondary here at Carolina. Which do you prefer?

A. I'd have to say the four-deep. It cuts down on a lot of your responsibilities and allows you to concentrate better. For example, I play the corner and I don't have to worry as much about the deep pass as I would in the three-deep. I can put more emphasis on stopping the short pass because I know I have two safeties to help with the long one.

Q. How do you prepare yourself mentally for a game?

A. Basically, I just try to go over and over the scouting report in my mind. Repetition like that has helped me because when something happens, I have thought about it enough that I can react instantly without pausing to think. If you hesitate even the slightest in the secondary, you're in trouble. I also watch a lot of films.

Q. Are films much of a help?

A. They've been a great help to me. I, of course, pay close attention to opposing receivers. You might think you've noticed everything possible about a particular player, but if you keep looking you'll always find something new and helpful.

Q. What lessons have you learned from football?

A. There's an old cliche, "Practice makes perfect," that I've always heard in football. It's true and I've also found that it's true about life as well.

Q. What was the toughest adjustment you had to make when you came to college?

A. For the first time in my life I found I was devoting a lot of time to one thing—football. There is much more time spent on it in college than in high school, but the very nature of the game demands that. It was tough to realize that at first, but after a while I was able to discipline myself and handle the situation.

Q. Outside of football, what have you enjoyed most about your time in Chapel Hill?

A. Meeting people. There is a very relaxed feeling in Chapel Hill that reminds me a lot of my own hometown. Chapel Hill is really a very unique place. There are people from all walks of life here, yet the town is still small enough to let you really feel at home.

Q. What kind of team do you think Carolina will have this fall?

A. I'm optimistic about the season. Quite obviously we are going to be very young. However, I think we'll surprise a lot of people by being better than they might think.

Conley on Chapel Hill's Franklin Street

Perdue chats with a pretty friend at a campus pool.

Q. What do you feel is the most important requisite to being a defensive end?

A. That's hard to say because a good defensive end must be able to do a lot of things. Speed is certainly important. However, I would have to say recognition of plays is at the top. At a lot of defensive positions you can flow with the play. However, at end, you have to hold your ground a good deal of the time. You must be able to recognize plays quickly so you can decide whether to make a move or to stay at your position and let the offense make the first move.

Q. You have played both offense and defense in your football career. Which do you prefer?

A. I was a high school quarterback and had never played defense until I got to Carolina. Then I broke a finger and was switched to linebacker as a freshman and then to end. I really like defense more. You can play with more emotion on defense and be more physical. And it's like the old saying, "You get to hit instead of getting hit."

Q. What has been your biggest thrill on the football field?

A. I've never felt better than I did in the locker room last year after we had beaten N. C. State. State is one of our biggest rivals, but that wasn't the complete reason I felt that way. I knew they had an outstanding team and we had really accomplished something that day by beating them as we did.

Q. Can you recall your personal feelings in your first start last year as a sophomore?

A. It's really something I can't put into words. When I was growing up I had always dreamed of playing college football. Suddenly I was getting that chance. I consider myself very lucky to be able to play football, but I couldn't tell you my exact thoughts that day. In fact, I don't even remember much about how I played because I was very keyed up. I know the team played well, beating Ohio University, and I think I did fairly well.

Q. A lot of people claim football players are set aside from the rest of the University community. Do you feel like a normal student?

A. Yes, I think so. I don't want to be treated differently from any other student just because I'm an athlete and I don't think I am. I don't believe people realize how much of a player's time is taken up by college football. That would be the only difference between me and another student—I don't have as much free time as the average person.

Q. What do you enjoy most about football?

A. I enjoy the competition and the self-pride one can develop by being successful. Confidence is a big part of life and you can learn how to gain that through football.

6-2, 202, Sophomore, Lincolnton, N.C.

Missed the latter part of spring practice with a knee injury . . . Will be a question mark this fall because of that . . . Was a candidate for a starting spot until being hurt . . . Showed a great deal of improvement and profit from being red-shirted last year . . . Hopes to attend law school . . . Plays the guitar and enjoys surfing and weightlifting.

ROGER SHONOSKY 75
6-1, 220, Junior, Norwich, N.Y.

Could be a help if he can learn the intricacies of the 5-2 defense in a hurry . . . Was red-shirted in 1973 and then missed all of last season . . . A good athlete who just lacks experience.

DEFENSIVE BACKS

27 SCOTT BATCHELOR
5-11, 174, Sophomore, Winston-Salem, N.C.

A walk-on who has won a scholarship through his hustle and desire . . . Was red-shirted last fall and has shown 200 per cent improvement . . . Doesn't have great physical tools, but is determined to make it . . . Coaches say he will eventually play, perhaps as soon as this season . . . A good student . . . Played at Mt. Tabor and Reynolds High in Winston-Salem.

MIKE BUCKNER 43
5-11, 180, Sophomore, Burlington, N.C.

Walk-on who came out for the team in the spring . . . Does not figure in the plans for this fall . . . Has a long way to go before he will be a prominent member of the team.

38 ALAN CALDWELL
5-11, 163, Sophomore, Winston-Salem, N.C.

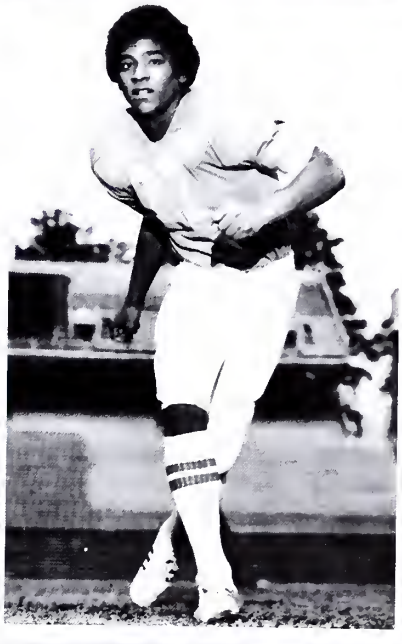
A true sophomore who will definitely see action this fall . . . Played with the varsity last season and did a good job on the specialty teams . . . He's small, but is one of the team's hardest hitters . . . Has good speed and quickness . . . Had a great spring, making vast strides in all phases of play . . . Appears to have a bright Carolina future.

JEFF CALDWELL 37
6-1, 180, Sophomore, Clyde, N.C.

Another fine, young prospect . . . Played with the varsity last year, seeing action in the secondary and on the specialty teams . . . Will contend for a spot at strong safety . . . Made good progress in the spring . . . Still needs improvement in some areas . . .Intercepted a pass in the Pittsburgh game last season . . . A quarterback and safety at Pelham and Tuscola Highs.

40 TOM CATAFYGIOTU
5-10, 175, Sophomore, Smithfield, N.C.

Came out on his own last fall and won a scholarship . . . Was red-shirted last season . . . Did not play as a freshman and thus lacks experience . . . An injury in the spring hurt his progress . . . Has great strength.



RUSS CONLEY 17
6-0, 167, Junior, Canton, N.C.

Should again be a starter in the secondary . . . Russ started much of his freshman year and all of last season . . . Had three interceptions last fall . . . Has great quickness and good speed . . . Still needs to add strength and body weight . . . Missed part of spring practice with an injury . . . Although he could be used at safety, his likely position will be cornerback . . . Played quarterback, halfback and safety at Pisgah High . . . Was voted Western North Carolina Back of the Year as a senior . . . Played in the Shrine Bowl.

26 JOHN DAW
5-7, 155, Junior, Smithfield, N.C.

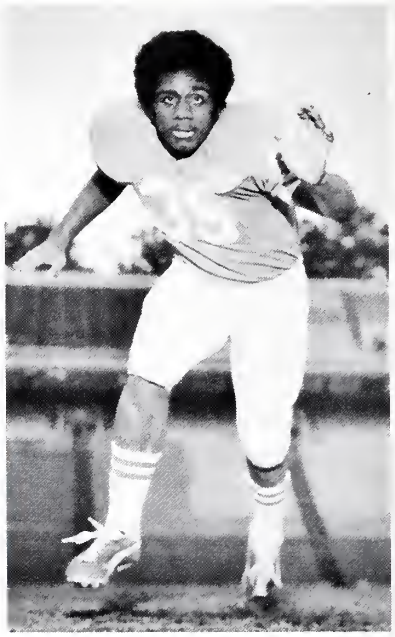
Saw limited action last year, but should get more playing time this fall . . . A walk-on who won a scholarship . . . Dedicated to the game . . . Understands the game well and has good knowledge of Carolina's defensive scheme . . . Lettered in football, wrestling and baseball at Smithfield-Selma High . . . Enjoys playing tennis.

JEFF HEAD 15
5-10, 174, Sophomore, Kinston, N.C.

Played on the jayvee team last season . . . Came out for football without a scholarship . . . A smart player . . . Needs better speed and quickness . . . Should help the secondary in the future . . . Star baseball and football player at Kinston High . . . His hobby is carpentry.

20 RONNY JOHNSON
5-10, 187, Junior, High Point, N.C.

Could be one of the best defensive backs in the ACC . . . Had a good year last season as a starter at cornerback . . . With that experience, coaches are expecting big things from him this year . . . Worked at both cornerback and safety in the spring . . . A dedicated athlete who should be one of the defensive leaders . . . Won the Chuck Erickson Award as the outstanding hustler in spring practice . . . A team player . . . Reliable and consistent . . . His brother, Sammy, was a star tailback at Carolina . . . Ronny is a good, solid, all-around player.



BILL STROWDER 39
5-8, 177, Sophomore, Cleveland, Ohio

Came out for the team on his own this spring . . . Does not figure to be a prominent player this fall . . . Needs experience in Carolina's four-deep secondary.

30 WADE THORNTON
5-10, 175, Sophomore, Nashville, Tenn.

Played on the junior varsity last year as a walk-on . . . Missed all of spring practice with an injury . . . Has the potential to be a good football player at Carolina . . . Lacks experience and needs a lot of work.

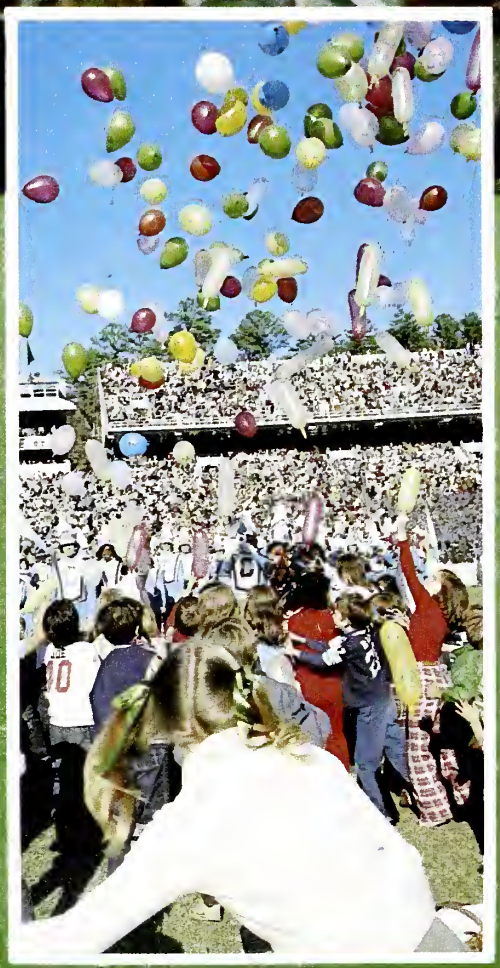
BOBBY TROTT 11
5-9, 161, Senior, Kannapolis, N.C.

Started every game last year at weak safety . . . Came out for football on his own and won a scholarship . . . Bobby's not gifted with great speed or size . . . His dedication and desire to excel won him a starting spot . . . Will be counted on for leadership . . . Will be the only senior starting on defense . . . Makes very few mistakes . . . Bobby makes up for any physical liabilities with intelligence . . . Has a good attitude about the game . . . Enjoys reading, camping, swimming and tennis.

48 FRANCIS WINTERS
5-11, 175, Sophomore, LaPlata, Md.

Here's one of the best, young players in the ACC . . . Has a good chance to start as a true sophomore . . . Francis saw limited action with the varsity last year, mainly on the specialty teams . . . Also saw some playing time with the jayvees . . . Has great athletic ability . . . Has good size, speed and quickness . . . Only thing he lacks is experience . . . May have made more progress during the spring than other other defensive back . . . Was an all-state player at LaPlata High School.

This Is Carolina



Nestled in the rolling foothills of Piedmont North Carolina is Chapel Hill, home of the University of North Carolina.

The late artist William Meade Prince once described the town and University as "The Southern Part of Heaven." It is a tag richly deserved.

Time Magazine has called Chapel Hill "One of the 20 most enjoyable places to live in the United States." It is a town without pretense, one in which the fellow wearing the $150 suit may run a small cafe, while his conversational partner, looking worn and tattered, may well be a successful novelist.

The school itself is the oldest state university in the nation, first admitting students in 1795 while George Washington was President. However, it was not until after Reconstruction that Carolina began making the rapid progress that has lifted it to the top of southern education.

There are currently 14 schools at Carolina and more than 70 departments and other academic-affiliated divisions and institutes.

Strong in both the humanities and the sciences, the University also has a School of Business Administration of special potency, commensurate with the growing industrial might of the mid-South.

An integral part of the University is the Division of Health Affairs, a six-fold center that includes a four-year medical school, dentistry school, pharmacy school, school for nursing and a public health school. All are located in the North Carolina Memorial Hospital, a teaching center for hundreds of clinics in 100 North Carolina counties.

The University

Among the dozens of institutes and specialized programs affiliated with that division are the Health Services Research Center, the Hand Rehabilitation Center, the Child Development and Mental Retardation Research Institute and the Dental Research Center, each of which is one of only a few centers of its kind in the country.

Carolina is one of the largest and top-ranking universities in the nation. A recent rating of graduate schools by the American Council on Education put 12 UNC graduate departments in the highest category and 12 in the second highest. That made Carolina the leader of all universities, public or private, in the Southeast.

Alan Carter of the ACE describes Carolina as "the leading southern university, a liberal voice in the region."

In annual choices made by southern graduate scholars in the Rockefeller grants, more select graduate study in Chapel Hill than any other place.

The University is continuing to grow as it strives to keep pace with today's changing world. Growth has been especially tremendous in the last 20 years. Those two decades have seen the establishment of the School of Journalism, the School of Business Administration, the Carolina Population Center, the WUNC-TV educational television station, the Ackland Art Center and a new computer system.

In that same time buildings have multiplied; student enrollment has reached nearly 20,000; the faculty has grown to over 1,200; new courses have been added to the curriculum and old ones revised; adult education courses have expanded; and scholarship and development programs have grown.

Here are some other facts of interest about one of America's great academic institutions:

*Carolina's Morehead Planetarium, the first ever built on a college campus, is one of the most sophisticated in the world. Since 1960, American astronauts in the Mercury, Gemini, Apollo-Skylab and Apollo-Soyuz programs have been trained in celestial navigation at the Planetarium. It is equipped with the world's most advanced planetarium instrument, the Zeiss Model VI projector—one of five in existence in the world. The Morehead Building also includes a 35-foot walk-in model Copernican Orrey, one of two in the world. It demonstrates how planets revolve around the sun while rotating on their axes and the moons revolve around the planets.

*The Walnut Rotunda of the Planetarium contains a distinguished collection of 17th and 18th century paintings, including works by Rembrandt, Anthony Van Dyck, Thomas Gainsborough, Henry Raeburn, Rembrandt Peale and others.

*Thirty-one of North Carolina's 50 governors have been Carolina graduates.

*One of the best-known organizations on campus is the Carolina Playmakers. Former members include Thomas Wolfe, Paul Green and Betty Smith.

*James K. Polk, an 1818 graduate, became the 11th President of the United States.

*The William Hayes Ackland Memorial Art Center contains European and American art objects dating from 3,000 B.C. through the major periods of Western art, and is especially rich in French 19th Century paintings.

*The Institute of Government on campus is a training center for city, county and state officials and employees. It is also involved in research and consultations for state and local governments.

*The University's television network feeds programs into North Carolina public schools.

*The W. C. Coker Arboretum is a five-acre naturalistic garden on the east edge of the historic campus, containing 400 varieties of ornamental plants and shrubs.

*The Libraries consist of Louis Round Wilson Library, a research library in the humanities and social science; the Robert B. House Undergraduate Library; and more than a dozen school and departmental collections which total nearly three million volumes.

*The Music Library in Hill Hall is the largest of its kind in the South with over 60,000 volumes of books and scores and more than 10,000 recordings.

*The North Carolina Research Laboratories of Anthropology is a repository for more than two million artifacts, most of them uncovered by the museum's own excavations and is considered to be one of the primary sources for archaeological research in the South.

*Another feature is the Institute for Research in Social Science, an organization performing fact-finding duties in sociology, economics, humanities, statistics, journalism and other fields, including race relations, urban studies and regional development.

But perhaps the most outstanding feature of the University is the gentle way the new has been blended with the old to form one of the most beautiful campuses in the world.

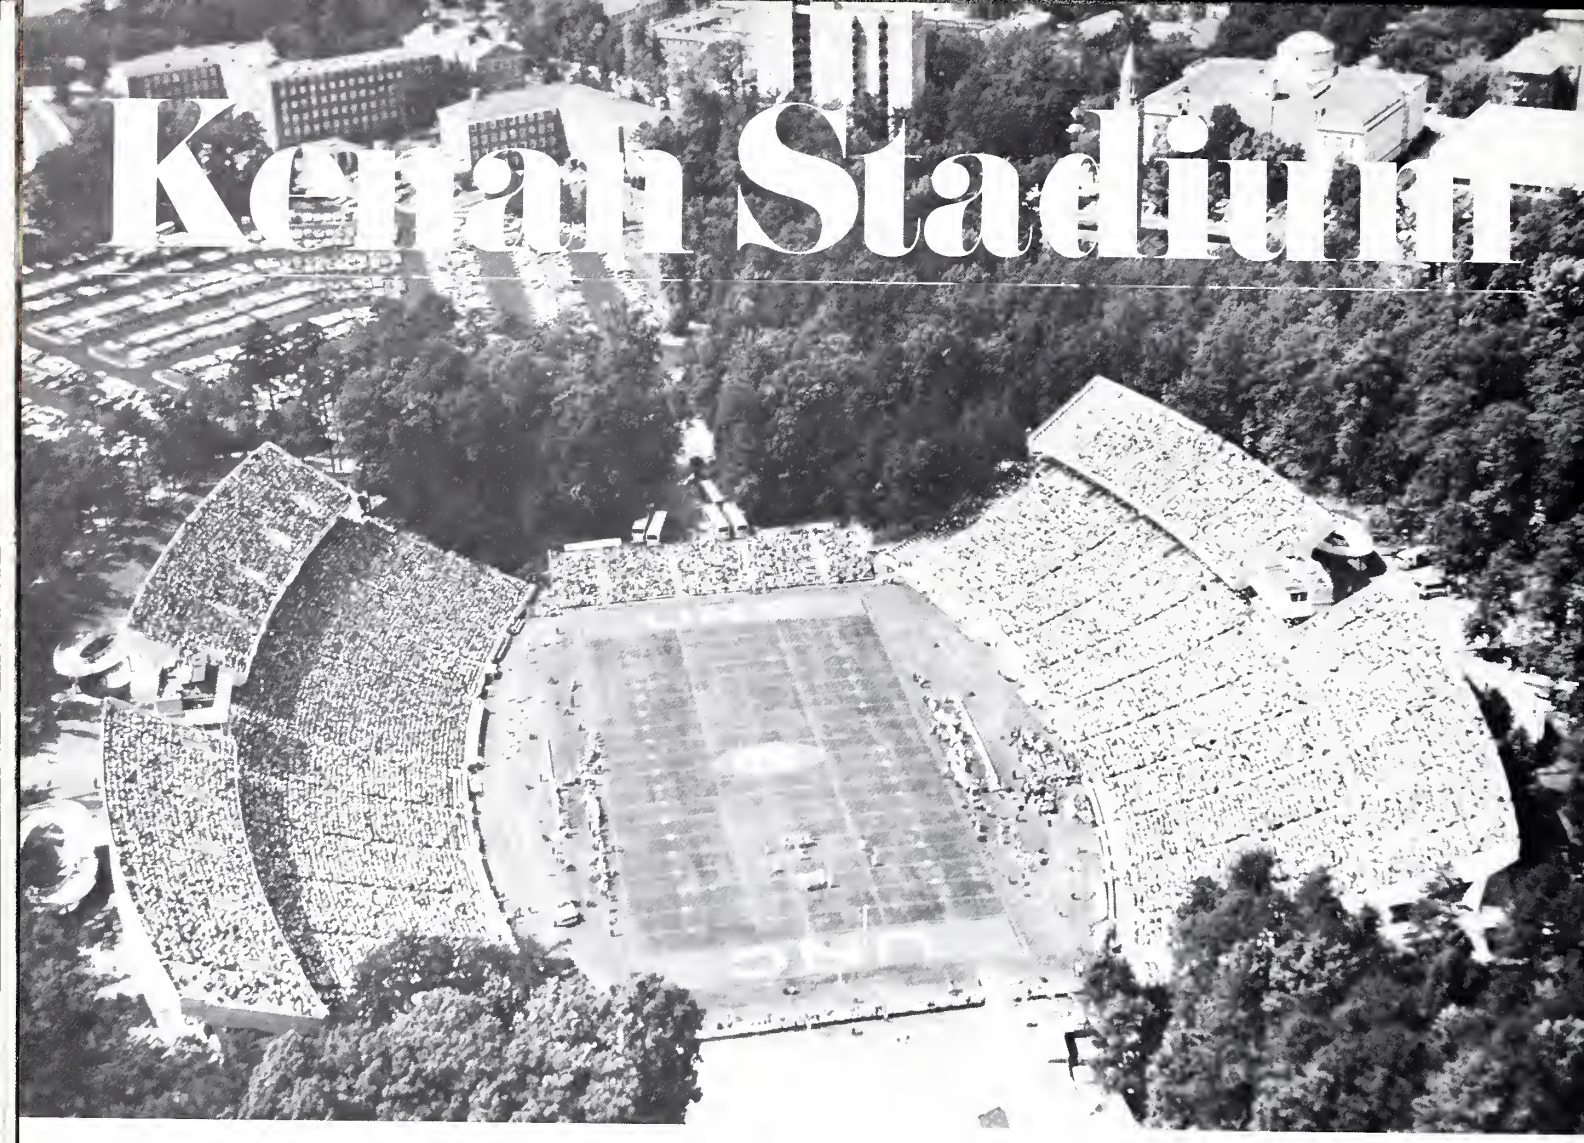
Ivy-covered buildings and tree-lined walkways surround spacious, grassy greens where students lounge between classes. Tall pines cover south campus where modern buildings are under construction.

In direct contrast are Gerard Hall, built in 1837, and Old East, the oldest state university building in the nation. The cornerstone to Old East was laid in 1793 and the dorm was dedicated as a national shrine in 1966.

Other famous and beautiful spots around campus include the Old Well, the Carolina Inn, the Davie Poplar, the botanical gardens and Gimghoul Castle.

Despite the changes and growth, the basic beauty of this area remains the same. It still truly is "The Southern Part of Heaven."

Kenan Stadium



Kenan Stadium is where the action is—the color, the motion and the pageantry of Carolina football.

It is here in this beautiful natural valley, nestled among tall pine trees, that the men in Carolina Blue have played their games for 48 years. The 1975 season will add another great chapter to the stadium's story.

Kenan Stadium is generally referred to as one of the most beautiful football arenas in the country. Some say it is THE most beautiful. Little can be done to enhance its natural beauty. In fact, most of the work on the stadium has been directed toward keeping up the natural setting.

William Rand Kenan, Jr., deserves the credit for making the stadium a part of University life. He was born in North Carolina in 1873 and was an 1894 graduate of the University. The late Mr. Kenan, who died in 1966, was an international industrialist. He discovered carbide and made monumental progress in the field of chemistry.

The stadium was constructed as a memorial to his parents, William R. Kenan and Mary Hargrave Kenan. It was dedicated Nov. 12, 1927 and Carolina defeated Davidson, 27-0, in the first game played there.

The stadium had a capacity of 24,000 that first year. However, in later years, Mr. Kenan added portable stands in the end zones and then an upper deck to the permanent stands to bring the capacity to 47,000.

Five years ago, standing-room tickets were sold for games with South Carolina and Duke and attendance reached an all-time high of 48,500.

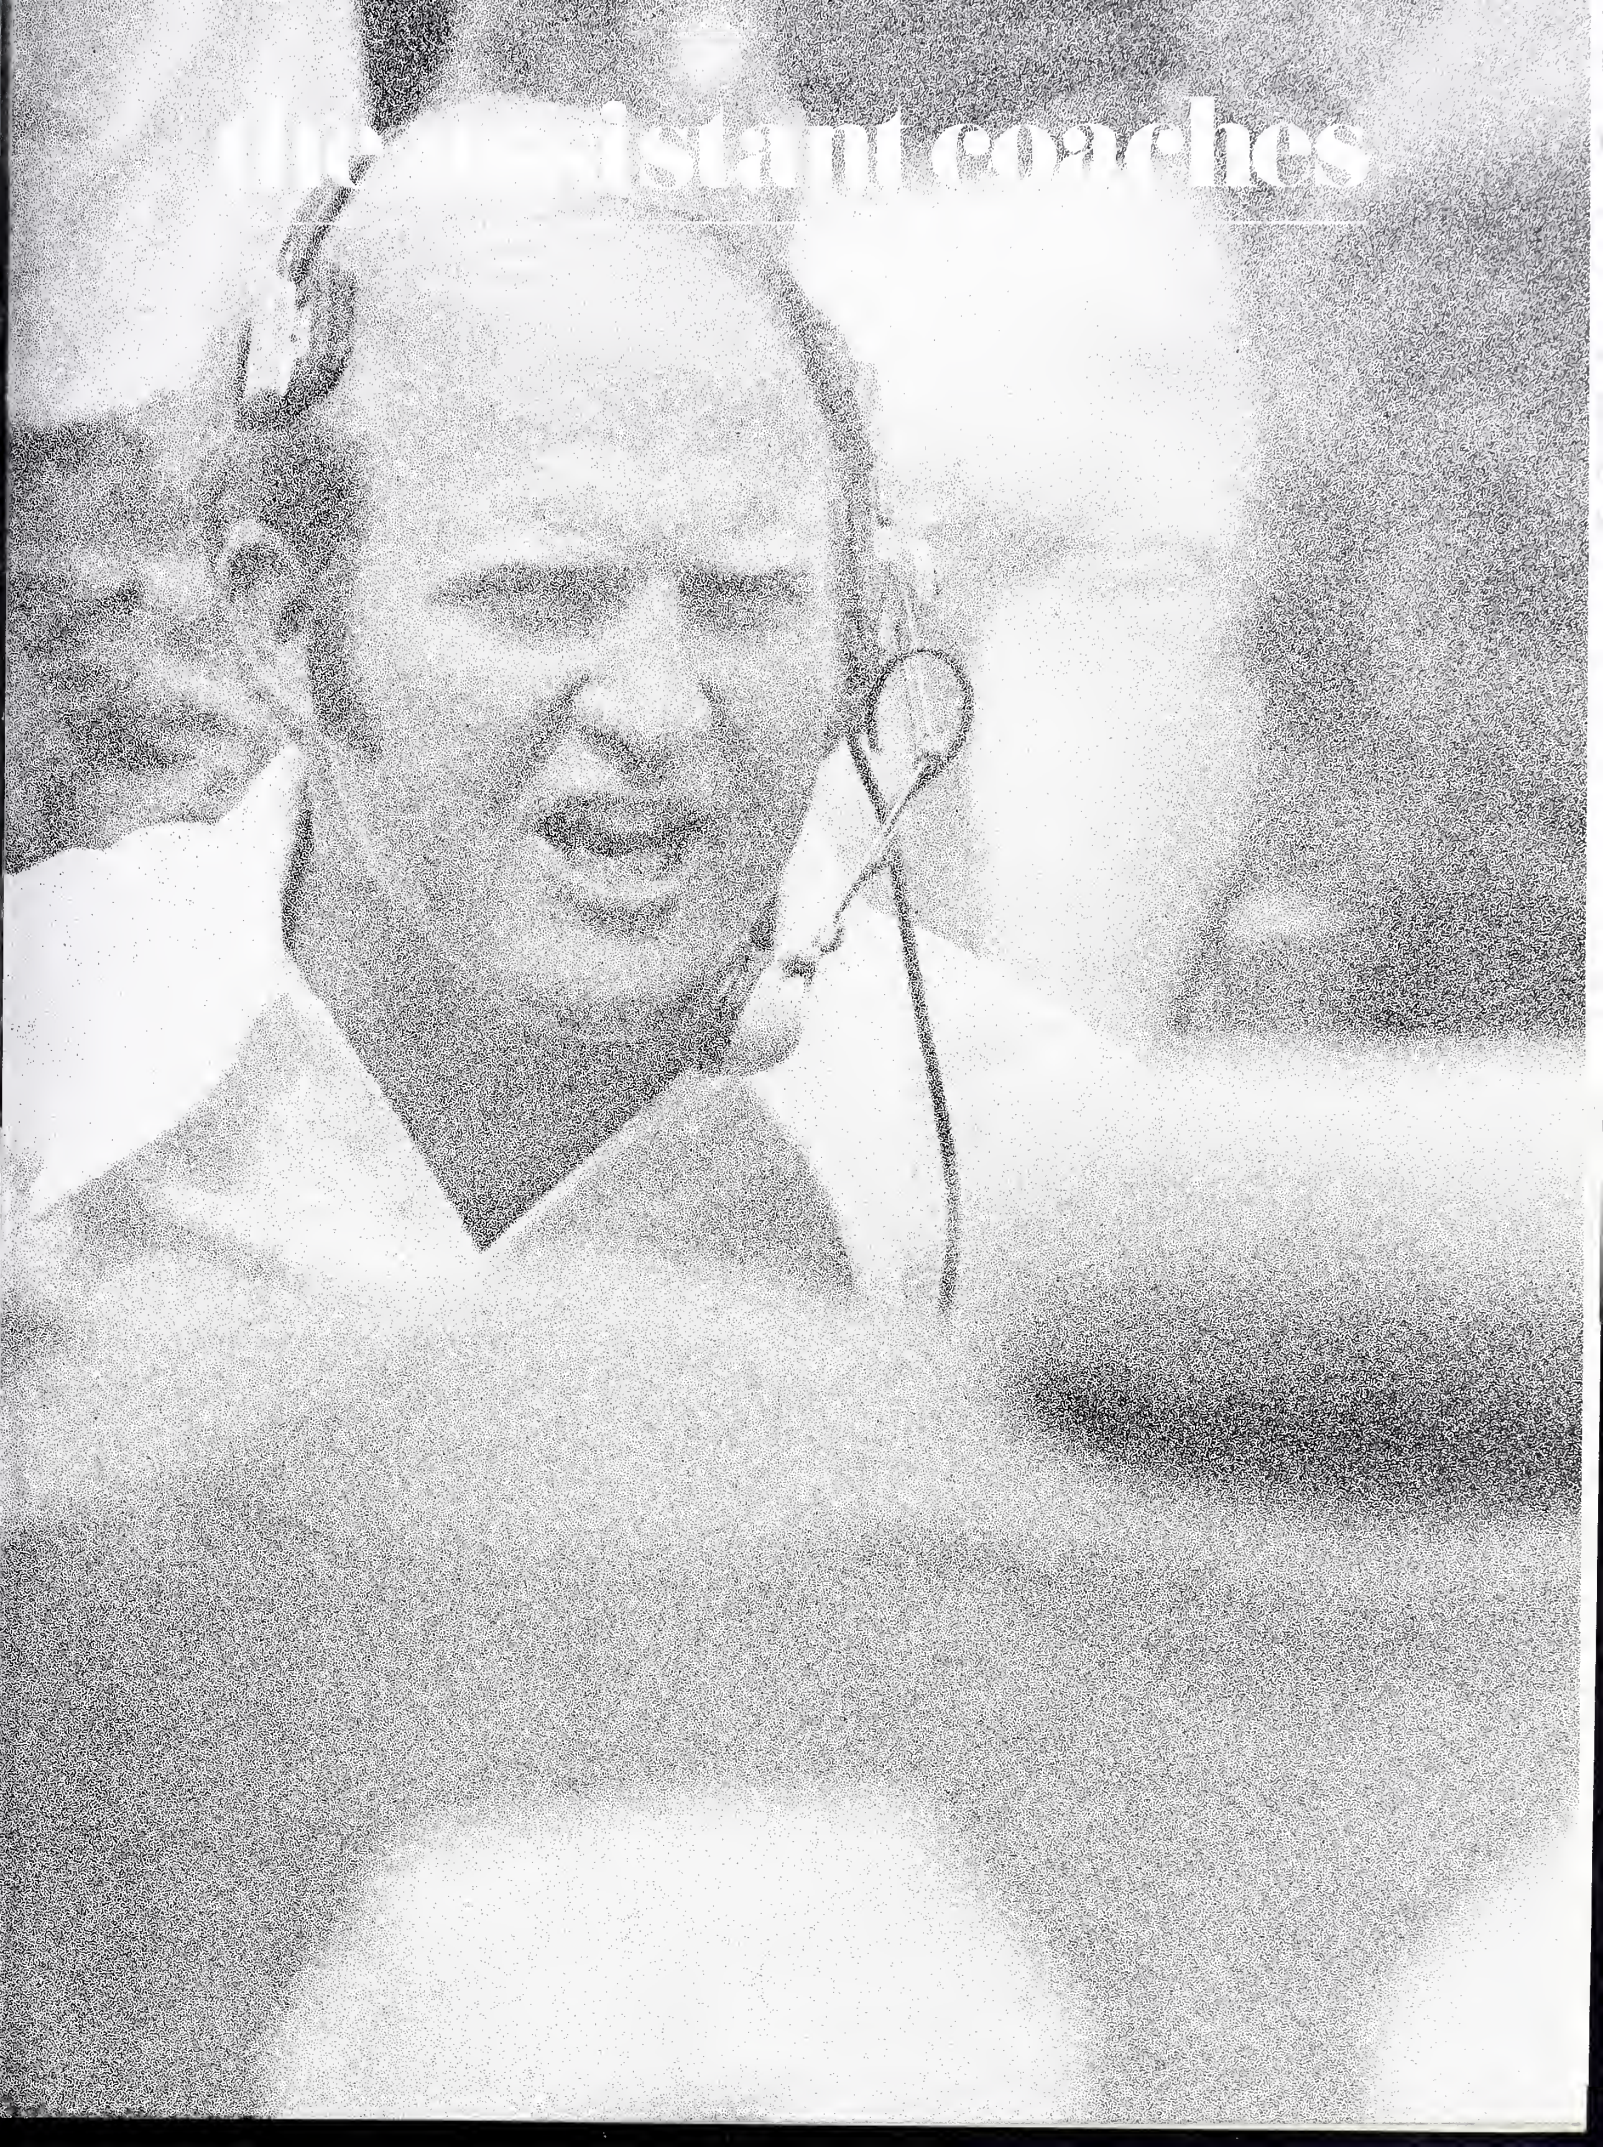
Besides giving the stadium to the University, Mr. Kenan also sponsored and financed the famous Kenan Professorships. He was awarded the honorary degree of LL.D. by his alma mater in 1944.

Six games are scheduled for Kenan Stadium this fall. The Tar Heels will battle traditional rivals Maryland, Wake Forest and Clemson and outside foes William and Mary, Notre Dame and East Carolina.

For these games, students, faculty, alumni and fans will converge on the stadium. They will enjoy football at its finest in a stadium that is magnificent.

This is Kenan Stadium and this is where the action is.

the assistant coaches



Pat Watson

Offensive Coordinator and Offensive Line Coach

Pat Watson, once a star player for Bill Dooley at Mississippi State, will be the offensive coordinator for the Tar Heels this season, in addition to handling his duties as offensive line coach.

Pat already has an all-star reputation. He was one himself in his playing days with the Bulldogs and he's been turning them out in the line at Carolina. In his three years on the Tar Heel staff Pat has produced two consensus All-Americas, guards Ron Rusnak and Ken Huff. Huff, in fact, was the third player chosen in the professional football draft last year.

Watson is actually in his second coaching stint at Carolina. He served as a graduate assistant here in 1967 and 1968. He then coached one year at Furman and two seasons as defensive line coach at his alma mater under Charles Shira. He returned to Chapel Hill in 1972.

As a player, Pat was an offensive guard and linebacker at Mississippi State in the early 1960's. He was All-Southeastern Conference in 1963 and 1964 and All-America in 1963. He also made the All-SEC academic teams in those years.

His 1963 team won the Liberty Bowl game. Dooley was his coach at that time.

Pat is married to the former Freddie Mauldin. Both are natives of Meridian, Miss. The Watsons have a one-year-old girl, Jane Elizabeth.

Jim Dickey

Defensive Coordinator and Linebacker Coach

The newest member of the Carolina football staff is Jim Dickey, who will serve as the Tar Heels' defensive coordinator and linebacker coach.

Dickey replaces Bobby Collins, who resigned last December to become head coach at Southern Mississippi University.

Jim comes to Carolina from the University of Kansas where he had been assistant head coach and defensive coordinator the past two years. Prior to that, he was an assistant coach at the University of Oklahoma for three years, at Oklahoma State for four years and at the University of Houston for three years. In all his college coaching assignments, he has been a defensive specialist.

A native of Houston, Dickey played quarterback at Tyler, Tex. Junior College and then at Houston in 1954 and 1955. He was All-Missouri Valley in 1955.

He began his coaching career at Ball High School in Galveston, Tex. in 1957 and remained there for three years. He was head coach at King High in Houston in 1961 and 1962 before returning to his alma mater in 1963.

In 1967 his defensive secondary at Oklahoma State ranked fourth in the nation in pass defense. In 1973 under Dickey's coaching, Kansas led the nation in both pass interceptions and forced turnovers.

Jim is married to the former Inez Philpot of Houston and they have three children—Deborah, 22; Jim, Jr., 21; and Darrell, 14.

Vito Ragazzo

Offensive Backfield Coach

The veteran of the Carolina coaching staff is Vito Ragazzo, who works with the Tar Heels' offensive backs.

Carolina set new school records in passing and total offense last year and Ragazzo deserves a lot of the credit. Two of his players, quarterback Chris Kupec and tailback James Betterson, made the All-Atlantic Coast Conference team last year.

Vito is actually in his second stint at Carolina. He previously coached here for five years during the Jim Hickey regime. He came back to Chapel Hill before the 1973 season from East Carolina University where he served for two years as offensive coordinator.

Prior to that, he had been head coach for five seasons at Virginia Military Institute. His 1967 VMI team upset both Virginia and Virginia Tech and he was named the state's Coach of the Year.

A native of Aflex, Ky., Ragazzo attended William and Mary and set a national pass-catching record there in 1949. He was a prominent member of the 1948 Indian team which tied Carolina, 7-7, spoiling a perfect season for the Tar Heels.

Following his collegiate career, Vito played and coached with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian League. He was an assistant coach at VMI for five years before joining Hickey's staff here in 1961.

Ragazzo is married to the former Betty Roberts of Roanoke, Va. They have a daughter, Jo Ann, 20, and a son Phil, 18. Phil is a member of the current Carolina football team.

Al Groh

Defensive End Coach

The coach of the Carolina defensive ends is Al Groh, one of the brightest young men in the college game.

A native of New York City, Al was a football and baseball star at Chaminade High School in Mineola, N. Y. He was an all-metropolitan football player and president of his senior class.

Groh attended the University of Virginia. He was a defensive end in football there and a defenseman in lacrosse.

He began his coaching career in 1967 at Albemarle High School in Virginia and then was an assistant coach at Army in 1968 and 1969. He returned to his alma mater as freshman coach in 1970. He joined the varsity staff as defensive line coach the following season.

Al is now beginning his third year in Chapel Hill. His star player of last season, Ted Elkins, was one of the best defensive ends in the Atlantic Coast Conference and was voted the Tar Heels' best defensive lineman.

Groh is married to the former Anne Stahle of Cornwall on the Hudson, N. Y. They have a son, Michael, three, and a daughter, Ashley Anne, one.

Offensive End Coach

Charlie Carr

Charlie Carr, one of the greatest pass-catchers in Tar Heel history, now uses his knowledge and experience to coach the Carolina offensive ends.

Carr was a record-setting end on Carolina teams in 1965, 1966 and 1967. He set an all-time UNC and Atlantic Coast Conference record in 1966 by catching 16 passes in one game against the Air Force. He had 52 receptions that year, tying Art Weiner's school record. Charlie's 94 career catches rank him third behind Weiner and Bob Lacey on Carolina's all-time pass-receiving list.

Carr is beginning his second year as offensive end coach. In his previous time on the Carolina staff, Charlie served one year as B team coach and two seasons as freshman coach. Prior to that he was a graduate assistant for two years.

A native of Virginia Beach, Va., Carr was a three-sport star at Princess Anne High School.

A great, all-around athlete, Charlie was an excellent baseball player for the Tar Heels in addition to his football heroics. He led the ACC in batting his senior year with a .398 average. Carr likes to play golf and tennis and is quite good at both sports.

Defensive Line Coach

John Matlock

John Matlock, an all-star player at Georgia Tech and a veteran of 12 years in the coaching profession, is beginning his second season on the Tar Heel staff.

Matlock coaches the Carolina defensive line. In his first year on the job, he produced an All-Atlantic Coast Conference player in middle guard Ronnie Robinson.

A native of Norfolk, Va., Matlock was a center and linebacker on Yellow Jacket teams from 1959 through 1963. He played on Georgia Tech teams which twice went to the Gator Bowl and once to the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Following his graduation from Tech, Matlock broke into the coaching ranks as an assistant at St. Pius High in Atlanta, a position he held for three years. He then was named head coach at Staunton Military Academy.

His first college coaching experience came when he was line coach at Randolph-Macon for two years. John then spent two seasons at East Carolina University and one at the University of Louisville before joining the Tar Heels.

Matlock is married to the former Betty Chapman of Atlanta, Ga. They have two daughters—Jill, who is five, and a new-born baby, Jan Elise.

Defensive Backfield Coach

Jack Stanton

The defensive secondary coach for the Tar Heels is Jack Stanton, one of the most knowledgeable men in the game today.

Stanton, a former star player and coach at North Carolina State, is now in his second year on the Carolina staff. When the Tar Heels switched from a three-deep to four-deep secondary last season, Stanton's coaching ability helped make that transition easier.

A native of Bridgeville, Pa., Jack was a two-way halfback for the Wolfpack in 1958, 1959 and 1960. He later played professional ball with Toronto and Pittsburgh in 1961 and Louisville in 1962.

Stanton started his coaching career on the high school level in Louisville and Wheeling, W. Va. He spent one year as head coach at Bishop Ireton High in Alexandria, Va. and another season under Jim Camp at George Washington University.

Jack then went back to State for a five-year stint and joined the Florida State staff for one season before being hired by Bill Dooley.

People close to the game say Stanton has one of the keenest minds in the business. His techniques in secondary coaching are highly regarded.

Jack is married to the former Ruth Ludwig of Carnegie, Pa. They have four children—John, 14; Christie, 13; Mark, 10; and Steve, 5.

Backfield Coach

Sandy Kinney

Success has followed Sandy Kinney throughout his Carolina career—as both a player and a coach.

Kinney was a member of the 1963 Tar Heel team which posted an 8-2 regular season record and then flattened the Air Force, 35-0, in the Gator Bowl. Now as a coach he's helped guide Carolina to two Atlantic Coast Conference championships and four bowl games in the last five years.

Kinney coached here one year after graduation under former UNC chief Jim Hickey. He then served in the Air Force in 1966. He returned to Chapel Hill as a graduate assistant to Bill Dooley in 1967 and was made a full-time staff member the following year.

Sandy's first assignment was working with Carolina's freshman teams. In that role he helped develop the young players who have taken the Tar Heels to glory in recent years.

Kinney was elevated to the varsity staff in 1972 and worked with the offensive backfield. That will again be his area of concentration this year. One of his star players, wingback Jimmy Jerome, made the All-ACC team last season.

Sandy is a native of Hendersonville, N. C. and is married to the former Sondra Peabody of Raleigh. They have a son, George Sandifer III, who is two, and a new baby boy, Robert Bruce.

Tom Fletcher

B Team Coach

Tom Fletcher is set to begin his fourth year on the Carolina coaching staff and once again will serve a vital dual role.

In regard to the current Tar Heel team, Tom will serve as B Team coach. He will coordinate the activities of the group that assimilates the offensive and defensive plays of Carolina's upcoming opponent.

His other main job will be that of a recruiter, a task he handles very well. In fact, Fletcher headed up the entire Carolina recruiting program during his first two years in Chapel Hill.

Tom came to the Tar Heels from the University of Virginia where he was coach of the Cavaliers' offensive line. He also tutored the Virginia receivers and gained great recognition when two of them, Bill Davis and Dave Sullivan, led the Atlantic Coast Conference in receptions.

Prior to coaching the offensive line, Fletcher worked with the Cavalier freshman team. He had formerly been a coach at Castlewood High in Virginia. He had an unbeaten season there and was named coach of the year.

A native of St. Paul, Va., he is a 1960 graduate of Hampden-Sydney where he lettered in three sports. He obtained his masters degree from the University of Virginia in 1968.

Jim Donnan

Chief Recruiter and Head Freshman Coach

Carolina enjoyed another banner recruiting year in 1974-75 and much of the credit has to go to Jim Donnan, one of the most dynamic young coaches in college football.

Donnan is Carolina's chief recruiter and also serves as head freshman coach. He handled those same responsibilities last season, his first on the Carolina staff.

A native of Burlington, N. C., Donnan was a star quarterback at North Carolina State in 1965, 1966 and 1967. In his senior year he guided the Wolfpack to their best record ever and a victory over Georgia in the Liberty Bowl. He was the Liberty Bowl's Most Valuable Player and finished second in the balloting for Atlantic Coast Conference Athlete of the Year.

After graduation, Jim joined the Wolfpack staff as a coach and remained there until 1972. He was a star recruiter for State and is largely responsible for the recent success of Wolfpack teams.

Donnan joined the Carolina staff for a brief time in 1972 before moving on to Florida State. He was an assistant coach for the Seminoles for two seasons.

Jim is still an active athlete. He plays tennis regularly and ranks as one of the best players in the state. He also is the trivia champion of the Tar Heel coaching staff.

Donnan is married to the former Mary Wright. They have three children.

John Guy

Assistant Freshman Coach

One of the most popular members of the Tar Heel coaching staff is John Guy, who works with the Carolina freshmen.

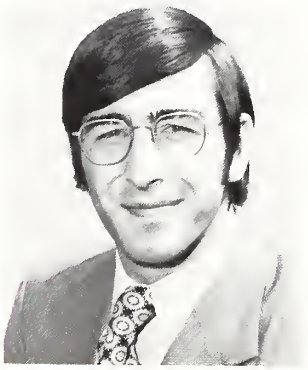
Guy is now beginning his second year as a full-time staff member. He served as a graduate assistant for one year before being elevated to his current position.

While working with the Tar Heel freshmen, John helped develop many of the players who carried Carolina to the Sun Bowl last season.

A native of Greensboro, N. C., Guy was a three-sport star at James B. Dudley High School there. He played football, basketball and baseball.

John was a free safety for Coach Hornsby Howell at North Carolina A&T from 1969 through 1972. He lettered all four years and made the MEAC all-star team as a senior.

Guy is a bachelor and takes a lot of kidding about that from his fellow coaches.



Bill Cannell

Academic Counselor

Carolina's coach off the field is Bill Cannell, who serves as academic counselor to the Tar Heel players.

One of the most important members of the Tar Heel football family, Cannell keeps tabs on the classroom progress of the UNC players and counsels them in all areas of their academic work.

Last year Bill was also named an assistant to Dean Donald Boulton, the University's dean of student affairs.

Cannell is beginning his fifth full year at the University. He came here in early 1971 as a replacement for Bill Cobey, Jr., who was named an assistant to Athletic Director Homer Rice.

A native of Woodstown, N. J., Cannell attended Gettysburg College and received his master's degree from Temple University. Before coming to Carolina he taught in public schools in New Jersey and Pennsylvania for two years.

Bill played soccer in college and is a member of the UNC Rugby Club. He also enjoys tennis. Cannell is a bachelor.

Trainer

John Lacey, one of the most respected men in his profession, heads an outstanding staff of athletic trainers at the University of North Carolina.

Lacey, beginning his 20th year in Chapel Hill, will once again be the head trainer for Carolina's football and basketball teams. He will work directly with Dr. Joseph DeWalt and Dr. Robert Lindsay, who head Carolina's outstanding Division of Sports Medicine.

Throughout his illustrious career, Lacey has been associated with championship teams and great athletes. He has worked with eight football bowl teams, five of them at Carolina.

One of his greatest honors came in 1972 when he was selected head trainer of the United States delegation to the Olympic Games in Munich. It was Lacey's second Olympic experience. He served as trainer of the U. S. basketball team in the 1964 Games at Tokyo.

Lacey came to Carolina in 1956 from Maryland when the late Sunny Jim Tatum was named the Tar Heel football coach. While at Maryland, Lacey served three bowl teams and worked with teams which won national championships in football and lacrosse.

At Carolina, Lacey went to the Gator Bowl with the 1963 Tar Heels and has recently worked with the four bowl teams of Bill Dooley.

He also was trainer for the 1957 Carolina basketball team which swept the national championship and the 1971 team which won the National Invitation Tournament.

A native of Wallingford, Conn., Lacey studied at the Yale University Department of Physical Therapy and at the Tilton School in Tilton, N. H.

Lacey is married to the former Barbara Koch of Wallingford. They are among the leading citizens in the Chapel Hill community.

UNC RIPS BOBCATS IN SEASON OPENER

Sparked by the running of James Betterson and the passing of Chris Kupec, Carolina bombed Ohio University, 42-7, in a Kenan Stadium season opener. Betterson, who was named national back of the week by SPORTS ILLUSTRATED, ran for 134 yards and three touchdowns and also had a 70-yard kickoff return. Boom Boom scored on runs of two, one and two yards. Kupec completed six of seven passes for 125 yards while splitting time at quarterback with Bill Paschall. Kupec scored Carolina's first touchdown on an eight-yard run and also threw a 73-yard scoring pass to Jimmy Jerome. The Tar Heels' other touchdown came on an eight-yard run by Mike Voight, who had 102 yards rushing for the day. The defensive stars included linebackers Billy Murphy and Bobby Gay and tackle Scott Reynolds.

TAR HEELS BLANK WAKE FOREST

Carolina used a strong defense and the pass-catching of Jimmy Jerome to defeat Wake Forest, 31-0, at Groves Stadium. Rod Broadway, Ronnie Robinson, Ted Elkins, Tom Embrey and Bobby Gay came up with big plays as the Tar Heels stopped every Deacon scoring attempt. Carolina also got key interceptions from Russ Conley and Ronny Johnson. Offensively, the Tar Heels went to the air against a stacked-up Wake defense. Jerome was the main target of Chris Kupec and Bill Paschall, catching seven passes for 149 yards. Paschall completed 10 of 13 tosses for 161 yards. The Carolina scoring came on a 38-yard field goal by Ellis Alexander, a seven-yard run by Mike Voight, a dazzling 42-yard punt return by Mel Collins and a 15-yard run by Charlie Williams.

TERPS HAND CAROLINA FIRST LOSS

Maryland's powerful Terps handed Carolina its first loss of the season, 24-12, in water-logged Byrd Stadium. Playing on regional television and in a driving rainstorm, the Tar Heels drove deep into Maryland territory in their first two possessions. However, Carolina got no points either time. The Terps got the first break of the game in the second period when Louis Carter broke through a jammed-up UNC defensive line and raced 76 yards for a touchdown. Maryland added two TD passes by Bob Avellini and a 37-yard field goal by Steve Mike-Mayer. Carolina got on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter on a ten-yard pass from Bill Paschall to Andy Chacos and a 38-yard toss from Chris Kupec to Jimmy Jerome.

OFFENSIVE EXPLOSION BLASTS PITTSBURGH

Carolina ripped nationally-ranked Pitt's defense for 550 yards and whipped the Panthers, 45-29, before 44,800 fans at Kenan Stadium. There were a host of offensive stars for the Tar Heels. Guard Ken Huff had a sensational day. Sophomore center Mark Cantrell, lined up against Pitt's great middle guard Gary Burley, turned in another outstanding performance. Chris Kupec threw a 43-yard touchdown pass to Jimmy Jerome and James Betterson scored twice on runs of one and two yards, but Carolina still trailed at halftime, 21-20. However, the second half belonged to the Tar Heels. Mike Voight scored twice on eight and nine-yard runs and Ellis Alexander added a 35-yard field goal. With Ronnie Robinson and Rod Broadway leading the way, the UNC defense held All-America Tony Dorsett to only 57 yards rushing, his all-time career low. Bobby Trott and Jeff Caldwell also had big defensive plays, each making an interception.

JACKET COMEBACK STUNS TAR HEELS

Adrian Rucker swept left end for seven yards and a touchdown with only 36 seconds to play and Georgia Tech added a two-point conversion to defeat Carolina, 29-28, at Grant Field. The lead changed hands five times in the wild game. David Sims put Tech in front early with an 18-yard scoring run, but Carolina came back to take the lead on seven and four-yard TD runs by Mike Voight. A two-yard run by Sims and a one-yard burst by Jimmy Murray sent Tech back in front, 21-14, early in the final period. However, Chris Kupec drove UNC for two scores, getting the touchdowns himself on runs of four and three yards. That final score came with only 2:34 to play. But Randy Rhino ran the ensuing kickoff back 57 yards to give the Jackets good field position. Tech drove for the winning score with the two-point conversion coming on a pass from Rudy Allen to Jimmy Robinson. James Betterson finished the game with 105 yards on the ground for Carolina, while Kupec passed for 123.

KUPEC, VOIGHT LEAD WIN OVER WOLFPACK

Chris Kupec scored two touchdowns and threw for another, and Mike Voight ran for 111 yards as Carolina whipped N. C. State, 33-14, before 47,400 fans at Kenan Stadium. The Wolfpack grabbed an early lead on a five-yard run by Roland Hooks. But Carolina dominated play for the rest of the day, handing State its first loss of the year. The Tar Heels scored four straight touchdowns on a 36-yard run by Voight, two three-yard runs by Kupec and a 10-yard burst by James Betterson. Hooks got another TD for State with a short run, but Kupec then iced the game with a four-yard TD pass to Dick Oliver. With Ken Huff and John Frerotte leading the way, the UNC offensive line played brilliantly. Ronnie Robinson and Rod Broadway were the defensive heroes. Voight finished the game with 111 yards rushing and Betterson added 87 more.

GAMECOCKS TOPPLE ERROR-PLAGUED CAROLINA

South Carolina took advantage of numerous Tar Heel errors and turnovers to defeat the Tar Heels, 31-23, at Williams-Brice Stadium. The Tar Heels lost four of six fumbles and were penalized 66 yards in the game. Those errors proved to be too much for Carolina to overcome. Carolina actually led 7-3 at the half on a three-yard run by Chris Kupec. However, two third quarter fumbles deep in their own territory cost the Tar Heels two USC touchdowns. Carolina bounced back on TD runs by Dick Oliver and Jimmy Jerome, but just could not catch up. Kupec had a fine passing night, hitting 14 of 20 for 151 yards. James Betterson had 113 yards rushing. Ron Bass was the big star though. The Gamecock signal-caller ran for 211 yards and scored twice.

CAVALIERS FALL TO TAR HEELS, 24-10

Mike Voight ran for 146 yards and Chris Kupec passed for 147 more as Carolina defeated Virginia, 24-10, at Kenan Stadium. The Tar Heels pounded out 323 yards rushing in the victory. James Betterson had 93 yards on the ground. Joe Jenkins gave Virginia an early 3-0 lead on a 39-yard field goal. Carolina then scored 24 straight points on a seven-yard run by Kupec, a 21-yard Ellis Alexander field goal, a 44-yard pass from Kupec to Jimmy Jerome and a one-yard plunge by Dick Oliver. Kupec had another great day passing with 11 completions in 15 attempts. Jimmy DeRatt had a sensational day in the secondary with 11 tackles, two batted down passes and an interception. Ronnie Robinson and Rod Broadway also played well defensively.

TIGERS BLITZ UNC AT DEATH VALLEY

Clemson's Tigers exploded for 34 points in the first half and coasted to a 54-32 victory over Carolina at Death Valley. Ken Callicutt and Mark Fellers were the big stars for Clemson. Callicutt ran for 170 yards on 19 carries, scored three times and also threw a 60-yard halfback touchdown pass to Joey Walters. Fellers gained 99 yards rushing, scored twice and threw two TD passes. Chris Kupec, Charles Waddell and James Betterson were the Carolina bright spots. Kupec completed 18 of 26 passes for 193 yards and three touchdowns. Waddell caught all three of those scoring tosses to set a school receiving record. Betterson scored Carolina's other two touchdowns and ran for 129 yards.

TAR HEELS OUT-OFFENSE ARMY, 56-42

Chris Kupec fired a record four touchdown passes and also scored once himself to lead Carolina to a wild 56-42 victory over Army in Kenan Stadium. Kupec's four scoring passes were a new school record. Those plays covered 29 yards to Pat Norton, 32 yards to Jimmy Jerome, 41 yards to Ray Stanford and 17 yards to Andy Chacos. Altogether, Kupec completed 10 of 12 passes for 214 yards. His touchdown run was a five-yard sprint in the first quarter. Mike Voight also had a big day with a career high 172 yards rushing and three TDs. James Betterson had 99 yards rushing and Mel Collins had a big 38-yard punt return. Carolina got great play from its entire offensive line as the Tar Heels rolled up 578 yards in total offense. Scott Gillogly and Markus Hardy scored twice each for the Cadets.

UNC EDGES DUKE IN THRILLER

Carolina came up with the big plays defensively and took advantage of errors in the Duke kicking game to edge the Blue Devils, 14-13, before 47,300 fans in Kenan Stadium. Art Gore, who had a great day for Duke with 171 yards rushing, gave the Blue Devils an early lead with a one-yard plunge. Carolina tied the score in the second quarter on a one-yard run by Mike Voight. That score was set up by a Bobby Trott interception. A one-yard run by Mike Bomgardner put Duke back in front, but Kirt Wilson blocked the extra point. The 13-7 lead stood until the fourth quarter when Gary Cowan forced a Gore fumble at the UNC 25 with only 5:29 to play. Ted Elkins recovered for the Tar Heels and Carolina moved for the winning points. The 25-yard drive took three plays, one a 17-yard burst by Voight. The touchdown came on a nine-yard sweep by Chris Kupec. Ellis Alexander booted the winning PAT. The defensive stars were many and included Jimmy DeRatt, Trott, Tom Embrey, Dee Hardison and Elkins.

The Sun Bowl

Powerful Mississippi State scored a late fourth quarter touchdown and then put down a last-ditch Carolina rally to defeat the Tar Heels, 26-24, in El Paso's Sun Bowl.

Carolina, making its fourth bowl appearance in the last five years, had a 24-20 lead until Terry Vitrano's two-yard burst with 3:41 to play sent the Bulldogs ahead.

The Tar Heels then tried a comeback of their own. James Betterson's 23-yard kickoff return got Carolina moving. After moving to one first down on a nine-yard run by Mike Voight, the Tar Heel drive began to stall. On a fourth-and-one situation at the UNC 48, Voight was piled up short of the first-down yardage and the Bulldogs took over. Mississippi State was then able to run out the clock.

Both teams had scored on their first possessions of the game. Mississippi State drove 75 yards in eight plays after taking the opening kickoff. The big play was a 55-yard run by Vitrano on the first play from scrimmage. Vic Nickels' PAT gave the Bulldogs a 7-0 lead.

Carolina came back to tie the score on the following series, going 80 yards in only six plays. The key plays were a 16-yard run by Betterson and a 46-yard pass from Chris Kupec to Pat Norton. That pass play took the Tar Heels to the MSU one-yard-line where Betterson scored behind Ken Huff's blocking. Ellis Alexander then kicking the tying extra point.

The only other scoring in the first half came on a 24-yard field goal by Nickels.

Betterson started the Tar Heels moving toward their second touchdown by carrying the second-half kickoff 45 yards to the UNC 45. Seven straight rushes by Betterson, Voight and Dick Oliver got Carolina into the end zone. Voight had the longest run, breaking three tackles on a 17-yard pickup, while Betterson scored the TD on a six-yard sweep. Alexander's PAT gave UNC a 14-10 advantage.

But, MSU came right back to regain the lead, going 69 yards in six plays. Walter Packer's 29-yard sprint was the big play in that drive. He also got the touchdown with a 16-yard run. Nickels' kick made the score 17-14.

Carolina also scored again in the third period. Russ Conley recovered a Vitrano fumble at his own 40 to give the Tar Heels possession. On a third and three, Betterson got Carolina the first down at midfield. Oliver then bulled his way for 18 yards to the 32. Two plays later, Kupec fired a 29-yard scoring strike to Jimmy Jerome and Alexander made the PAT.

Nickels added a 32-yard field goal for the Bulldogs and Alexander made a 27-yard three-pointer for the Tar Heels, setting up Vitrano's winning touchdown.

Packer had 183 yards rushing and Virano had 164 to pace the Mississippi State offense. Betterson ran for 84 yards and Voight for 90 to lead Carolina.

OUTLOOK

A re[illegible] quarterback and the return of only three starters on offense face W&M with several question marks to fill positively. The opposite holds true for the defense as nine starters return. It is expected the Indians will rely on the pass far more than they have in recent years, though the veer-option will again be the offensive scheme. W&M had an outstanding recruiting year and many of the newcomers could be a real asset to the varsity this fall. Heading the list of returnees are linebackers Craig McCurdy and Jeff Hosmer; defensive ends Steve Dalton and Bruno Schmalhofer; defensive tackle Ken Brown and tailback Tom Smith. Scott Goodrich should start at fullback and will team with Smith to give the Indians a strong one-two running punch. Best bet to replace Bill Deery at quarterback is senior Paul Kruis.

OUTLOOK

The return of 30 lettermen off last year's Liberty Bowl team should assure Maryland of another big season on the football field. The Terps will have lettermen starting at every position except kicking specialist and only two will be sophomores. A veteran defense will once again be strong despite the loss of All-America Randy White to graduation. Defensive back Jim Brechbiel and end Leroy Hughes should head that defense. Offensively, the Terps return versatile wingback John Schultz and speedster Rick Jennings at tailback. Jennings played a great deal last year and should be headed for a big season. Mark Manges, who had a brilliant freshman season, will start at quarterback. Guard John Nash will anchor the offensive line.

OUTLOOK

Ohio State will have 13 new starters in 1975, five on offense and eight on defense. Unfortunately a demanding schedule, especially early in the season, will require the team to mature faster than it normally would. The strength of the team is in the offensive backfield, where Cornelius Greene, Archie Griffin, Brian Baschnagel and Pete Johnson, all starters in 1974, return intact. Beyond this unusually talented foursome, inexperience will prevail. The Buckeye coaches believe that Ohio State will be able to field a solid first unit both on offense and on defense. There is considerable concern about backup strength. It is hoped that several freshmen will be able to take over, although this is unlikely till at least mid-season.

OUTLOOK

For the first time in over two decades Virginia will have [illegible] All-America candidates in quarterback Scott Gardner and offensive guard Tom Glassic, also its captains for 1975. Offensively the Cavaliers return everyone except fine split end Ken Shelton and it is this unit which will carry the burden for Virginia in the coming campaign. However, any improvement record-wise for the Cavaliers will be heavily dependent on the search for and replacement of the eight starters lost on defense, including two-time All-ACC linebacker Dick Ambrose. The healthiness of Gardner or Glassic and other key performers is another vital factor as to whether the Cavaliers can put it together in '75. A six game home schedule however is definitely in their favor.

Notre Dame returns 34 of 44 lettermen in Dan Devine's first year as the Irish coach. However, gone are 10 offensive starters and five off the defense. Best bet to replace Tom Clements at quarterback is Frank Allocco. While all the other starters are also gone from the backfield, there are several experienced players who will battle for starting spots. Tight end Ken MacAfee, a brilliant receiver, heads the offensive line. While the defense was not as hard hit by graduation as the offense, there will be new faces in the line and at linebacker. Key returnees are linemen Steve Niehaus, Tony Zappala, Jim Stock, Jeff Weston and Jay Achterhoff, linebackers Tom Eastman, Tony Novakov, Doug Becker and Pete Johnson, and backs Randy Payne, Randy Harrison, John Dubenetzky and Bob Zanot.

OUTLOOK

Boasting an outstanding leader in quarterback Dave Buckey and good balance among 38 returning lettermen, N. C. State appears headed for another fine season. On offense, the Wolfpack should again be a free-wheeling machine and the defense will be stronger than last year. With Stan Fritts and Roland Hooks gone from last year's team, more offensive emphasis will be placed on the passing game this fall with Buckey throwing to Eljah Marshall, Pat Hovance and Don Buckey. The rest of the backfield should include Tommy London and Johnny Evans. The offensive line appears solid. Heading the defense are backs Ralph Stringer and Eddie Poole and linemen Tom Higgins and Jim Henderson. The kicking game should be solid with Evans, the nation's number two punter last year; Stringer, an outstanding return specialist; and Jay Sherrill, who handles the place-kicking.

OUTLOOK

East Carolina will field a young team of unknowns in 1975. Of the top 45 players, only seven are seniors. The youth spells trouble. Key positions are open. Only five defensive players return. Only one of those is up front. The secondary returns intact and will be the team's strongest area. The key to the '75 Pirates will be whether the defensive front can be replaced and do the job. Offensively the picture is extremely bright. The interior line is returning along with a starting quarterback and halfback. This group led the Southern Conference in rushing offense and scoring last year. The Pirates are going to move the football and score this season, but the problem will be trying to stop the opposition.

OUTLOOK

It is hard to mreasure improvement when a team [illegible] Wake Forest did last season but there was progress over the pre[illegible] Coach Chuck Mills' estimation. The Deacons return a solid nucleus of [illegible] but experienced, players for 1975. The offense returns nine of 11 starters and the defense has seven back. All of Wake's offensive statistics last year were recorded by underclassmen. The offensive backfield, therefore, appears sound with sophomores Solomon Everett and Mike McGlamry joining junior college transfer Jerry McManus to give the Deacs solid quarterbacking. Frank Harsh, Clark Gaines and Jim Mach are proven runners. The offensive line, while lacking great experience, does have good size. Strong point of the defense should be the secondary. The defensive line will be bolstered by the addition of some junior college transfers.

OUTLOOK

The Tigers return 48 lettermen off last year's 7-4 team which had the best record of any Clemson club since the 1959 Bluebonnet squad. Among the losses are both starting guards, the starting center and quarterback Mark Fellers. Mike O'Cain will probably replace Fellers at QB and will be joined in the backfield by Ken Callicutt, the Tigers' leading rusher last fall. All-America tight end Bennie Cunningham leads a talented corp of receivers. Coach Red Parker feels his club will be better defensively this year. Soph Jeff Mills has a great career ahead of him at defensive tackle. Other top defenders should be tackle Jerome Hill, safety Peanut Martin and linebackers Tim Stough and Jimmy Williamson. Another problem for Parker may be replacing his graduated kicking specialists.

OUTLOOK

Tulane returns six starters on both offense and defense from last year's 5-6 team. All were pushed throughout spring practice for their starting spots. Weaknesses may be in the interior offensive line and in the defensive secondary. The defensive line returns intact except for Charlie Hall. Four lettermen return at linebacker and lettermen can man all the secondary posts. Lettermen will fill the offensive line vacancies and the receiving corp positions. Quarterback Steve Foley is the only starter missing from last year's backfield.

OUTLOOK

The Blue Devils expect to be in position to challenge for the conference title in 1975. Abundant talent at the skill positions and one of their finest offensive lines since Mike McGee's return to Duke are the reasons for optimism. Backs Art Gore, Tony Benjamin, Larry Martinez, Bob Pruitt, and Mike Barney are all dangerous and explosive. Capable QB Hal Spears has elusive targets in All-ACC Troy Slade and flanker Larry Upshaw. The defense, usually a Duke strongpoint, will be the question mark this season. Losses in the interior line and at the linebacking position must be filled for the Blue Devils to become a big winner in 1975.

the ABC's of Ca

"Let's Go CAR-O-LIN-A!" That's the battlecry which has inspired University of North Carolina athletes through 87 years of football competition and has helped produce some of the most colorful heroes in the game. If you know your ABC's of Carolina football, then these are the men and deeds you will remember:

A Three cheers for Roy Abernathy, a hard-driving fullback in 1905, and Joe Austin, whose touchdown catch toppled Duke, 6-3, in 1940. There's also Lou Angelo, the greatest pass thief in Tar Heel history.

B Who else but George Barclay, the great guard who became Carolina's first All-America player in 1934 and later was head coach here? And there was Handy Andy Bershak, the undersized end who swept All-America honors in 1937, and Johnny Branch, a fine runner on the 1930 and 1931 "teams of a million backs."

C Chuck Collins, who coached Tar Heel teams from 1926 to 1933, was a big favorite in our town. So were a couple of fine backs of later years—Johnny Clements, the fleet wingback of the Justice Era, and Jack Cummings, a quarterback who directed the never-to-be-forgotten 50-0 win over Duke in 1959.

D This letter stands for a new era in Carolina football and a bright young coach named Bill Dooley who has put the Tar Heels back in the national spotlight. And it also recalls Harry Dunkle, the fabulous kicking star of the late 1930s.

E Former Athletic Director Chuck Erickson was called The Rabbit when he slipped through defenses for big gains as a running back on the teams from 1929 to 1931. And Junior Edge was the dynamic quarterback of the 1963 team which walloped the Air Force, 35-0, in the Gator Bowl.

F F is for Ray Farris, two of them, in fact. The father was a star in the 1930s. Ray, Jr., quarterbacked the Tar Heels in 1960 and 1961.

G Everyone remembers Al Goldstein, the All-America pass-catching star of the late 1950s. He once dazzled a big crowd at Notre Dame with his one-handed grabs.

H One of the greatest players in recent years at Carolina has been Ken Huff, the All-America guard of last season. Linebackers have made big names for themselves in Chapel Hill and three stand out above the rest—Chris Hanburger, Rip Hawkins and Irv Holdash. And there's also Jim Hickey, who coached the Tar Heels from 1959 through 1966.

I "We like Ike" was a favorite chant here in the early 1970s as Ike Oglesby became one of Carolina's all-time leading rushers. One of the University's first coaches was V. K. Irvine, who headed the Tar Heels in 1894.

J Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice was the most publicized and probably the best of all the Carolina players. He made All-America three straight years (1947-49) and led UNC to three bowl games. He capped a great career by being named the Most Valuable Player in the College All-Star Game in Chicago. Four other great backs under this letter are Don Jackson, star of the 1934 team; Lewis Jolley, a fine player here in the 1970s; Sammy Johnson, who ran for 1,000 yards in 1973; and Jimmy Jerome, star wingback the last three years.

K No one will ever forget Gates Kimball, a massive tackle in the late 1930s, and Bill Koman, a sensational linebacker who went on to gain fame with the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL. And how about Chris Kupec, who set a national passing record last fall?

L Sweet Jim Lalanne, who perfected the running-jump pass, and Crowell Little, a swift broken-field runner, were great backs here in the 1930s. Bob Lacey, one of Carolina's all-time leading pass receivers, starred on the 1963 Gator Bowl team and made All-America.

M One of the Tar Heels' all-time greats was dashing Don McCauley, who rewrote the record book in 1970 and was a consensus All-America. His final game against Duke will never be forgotten—five touchdowns and 279 yards rushing. Harry Montgomery, a fleet back, and Steve Maronic, a bruising tackle, made headlines in the Thirties. Earlier, Monk McDonald starred on the 1922 team. There was also Paul Miller, who performed magic at quarterback in 1970 and 1971. And don't forget Morris Mason, the Kenan Stadium custodian from 1927 to 1974.

rolina Football

N Strud Nash scored 99 points for Carolina while playing on the 1928-29-30 teams. A star of a different era was James Newton, who played here in 1903.

O One of the keys to Carolina's recent football success was the bruising blocking of Dickie Oliver, a fullback of extraordinary ability. Wade Oldham set a school record here in 1904 when he scored four touchdowns against Georgia. And there was H. B. Olcott, coach of the 1902 and 1903 teams.

P Three men from the Forties will be remembered here. They are Ken Powell, an All-America end; Ray Poole, who played here during the war years; and Walt Pupa, the crunching fullback on the Justice teams.

Q One of the best remembered trainers in the game is Percy Quinlan, who served the Tar Heel teams in the 1920s and 1930s.

Ron Rusnak

R Ron Rusnak was a consensus All-America guard in 1972 and ranks as one of Carolina's greatest linemen. There's also Hosea Rodgers, a fullback who teammed with Charlie Justice in one of Carolina's best backfields.

Coach, Carl Snavely

S There are a whole lot of memories here. King Carl Snavely was the dynamic coach of the Justice Era and of other Carolina teams before that. Paul Severin made headlines and All-America as a Tar Heel end in the 1930s. George Stirnweiss was a dandy fullback in the late Thirties before becoming a baseball star with the New York Yankees. Charlie Shaffer got hurrahs in another era and Len Szafaryn was a sensational tackle on the Justice teams.

T No one in our town will ever forget Sunny Jim Tatum, the great player and coach who always was a Tar Heel favorite. He returned to his alma mater in the mid-fifties to rebuild UNC's football fortunes, but an untimely death took him away. Then there was Danny Talbott, the Rocky Mount kid who excited fans with his exploits in the 1960s.

U Fans of another era will remember Neal Underwood, a star on the 1930-31-32 teams.

V V stands for victory and that's what Nick Vidnovic brought Carolina in 1972. He quarterbacked the Tar Heels to an 11-1 record, their winningest season ever. Bill Voris was the captain in 1945 when Carl Snavely made a triumphant return to Chapel Hill. Sid Varney was a star guard a few years later.

Art Weiner

W There are a lot of W's in Carolina's storied past. Some of them are Art Weiner, the All-America end of the late Forties; Ken Willard, the brilliant halfback of the 1963 Gator Bowl champions; Ray (Bear) Wolf, the coach who won fame here in the 1930s; and Charles Waddell, the super tight end of the Bill Dooley Era.

X No good college man signs his name with an X, so this letter will stand for all the other fine Carolina players not mentioned elsewhere in this article.

Y Tom Young coached the Tar Heels in 1943, winning six of nine games.

Z And a final bow goes to Rich Zarro, star defensive guard on the 1963 Gator Bowl Championship team.

Educational Foundation

Ernie Williamson

Carolina's man for all seasons is Ernie Williamson, the executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation.

Regardless of the time of year, Ernie is always on the move—speaking to Foundation members, talking to prospective members and following all of Carolina's athletic teams.

Williamson is a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The native of Crewe, Va. played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and was regarded as an outstanding tackle.

He was lured away to professional football and played with Los Angeles and Washington before a knee injury ended his career.

Ernie returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees and then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He was an assistant coach there for two years and head coach for three seasons.

He returned to Carolina in 1957 to accept his present position. At one time he also served as a recruiter for the football program.

He is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va. They have a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Carole.

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation.

It is the Educational Foundation which makes possible all athletic scholarships awarded by Carolina.

As the Tar Heel sports program has grown through the years, the Foundation has done likewise. It is the enthusiasm and generosity of Foundation members which allows Carolina to field its excellent athletic teams.

"Interest reaches a new peak every year," says Ernie Williamson, the Foundation's executive vice-president. "There are many reasons for this, but the most important has been our great success in all sports the last few years."

The Educational Foundation currently has over 2,500 members who finance a scholarship program that costs over $600,000 a year.

"Since its inauguration in 1938, the Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, for over 2,000 student-athletes," says Williamson. "The majority of these men are anxious to return contributions which would enable us to award scholarships to others."

Williamson has always contended that a donation to the Foundation is not specifically a donation to the athletics. He says that the high caliber young man who is awarded an athletic scholarship is a great representative of the University.

Williamson feels the overall bonus is in helping a worthy young man obtain a college education. Athletics come second.

Any donation to the Educational Foundation is welcome. However, membership in the Rams Club is restricted to those who contribute $100 or more.

"To my knowledge, Carolina is the only school which has an endowment program for athletic scholarships," adds Williamson. "At the present time we have seven endowed scholarships and ten members who are contributing toward an endowed scholarship. Under this program, we have life memberships available and also accept wills and bequests to the athletic program."

Foundation members receive priority on seat locations for football and basketball. A special room on the south wing of Kenan Field House serves as a meeting place for Rams and their families. This area is open two hours before football games and provides a lounge and picnic facilities for those who come early.

"A Foundation membership is a badge of prestige and loyalty to the University," Williamson points out. "Many of our finest members, however, did not necessarily attend Carolina. They just heard about our program and felt it was worthy."

It is important to point out that all donations to the Foundation are tax deductible.

ORIGIN AND INCORPORATION

Three loyal and athletic-minded University of North Carolina alumni met in the office of Secretary of State Thad Eure at Raleigh in December of 1938 and organized the Educational Foundation, Inc.

The men were John Umstead Jr. of Chapel Hill, Max Abernethy of Raleigh, and Benton Stacy of Reidsville.

A charter was drawn with these three men as the incorporators and submitted to the late O. Max Gardner, who had his law firm clear it with the Internal Revenue Department as a charitable organization. The charter was issued December 7, 1938.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Educational Foundation, Inc. is to raise funds for providing scholarships or grants-in-aid at the University to worthy and qualified high school students with athletic ability.

The Educational Foundation, Inc. operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It has the blessing and good will of all the University administration and, in its unique field, occupies a status similar to that of the Business Foundation, the Medical Foundation, and other money-raising organizations working for the benefit of the University.

The full amount of all donations of Foundation members is used for scholarships and grants. The organization has no administrative expense.

Basketball Prospectus

With five of the top eight players returning from last year's great team, hopes are high for another successful year in basketball at the University of North Carolina.

Coach Dean Smith's Tar Heels won 23 of 31 games a year ago and swept their fifth Atlantic Coast Conference title in nine seasons. That gives Smith more ACC championships than any coach in league history.

But now the Tar Heels are faced with a new season and the challenge of defending their league title in one of, if not the toughest basketball conference in America.

"I'm confident we will again have an excellent team," says Smith. "The problem is all the other schools in the ACC are also expecting excellent teams. Many games were close last year, indicating the ACC's great balance. That balance should be even more pronounced this season."

Heading the cast of returning players for Carolina are Mitch Kupchak, 6-9 senior from Brentwood, N.Y.; Walter Davis, 6-5 junior from Pineville, N.C.; Tommy LaGarde, 6-10 junior from Detroit, Mich.; Phil Ford, 6-2 sophomore from Rocky Mount, N.C.; and John Kuester, 6-2 junior from Richmond, Va. Kuester was the top backcourt reserve last season and the other four were starters.

"We certainly expect all five to show improvement this season," says Smith, "and they must if we are to successfully defend our ACC title. Of course, we will miss our three graduated seniors, Brad Hoffman, fifth round NBA pick Ed Stahl and Mickey Bell."

Hoffman averaged 10.7 points per game for Carolina last year and also had 125 assists. His brilliant outside shooting will be difficult to replace. In Stahl, the Tar Heels lost good size (6-10) and shooting. Bell gave Carolina all-around good play, especially on defense.

"We think we have three legitimate All-America candidates this year in Kupchak, Davis and Ford," says Smith. "They will be among the best players in the country."

All three of those players were brilliant in last year's pressure-packed ACC Tournament. All received some All-America mention and should be headed for even bigger years in 1975-76.

Kupchak had a sensational junior year. He led the Tar Heels in scoring with an 18.5 average and in rebounding with 334. He hit 60.2 per cent of his field goal attempts and played excellent defense. Mitch made the All-ACC, All-ACC Tournament and All-Eastern Regional teams.

Davis finished his sophomore year with a 16.1 scoring average, 137 assists, 195 rebounds and a 50.5 shooting percentage from the field. He was remarkable in the ACC Tournament, hitting 22 of 33 field goal attempts and holding National Player of the Year David Thompson to a 7 for 21 shooting performance in the finals.

Ford broke into the ACC as perhaps no other freshman ever has. He led the Tar Heels in assists with 161, averaged 16.4 points per game and shot 51.6 per cent from the floor. He was voted the Most Valuable Player in the ACC tournament, scoring 78 points in three games. Phil is an excellent ballhandler and a key man in Carolina's four-corners offense.

LaGarde averaged 7.7 points and had 143 rebounds for the Tar Heels last season. Tommy had some of his best games against national powers N.C. State and Maryland. He has tremendous ability and just needs to be more consistent to develop into an outstanding ACC player.

Kuester saw a great deal of action a year ago and is the leading contender for Hoffman's starting spot in the backcourt. He's a fine passer and ballhandler and has shown steady improvement in his two years at Carolina.

However, after the top five, depth could be a problem. Much of Carolina's success will depend on how much help the Tar Heels get from reserves Bill Chambers, Dave Hanners, Bruce Buckley and Tom Zaliagiris.

"This group must improve to contend for starting spots and to give us depth," says Smith. "We don't want to change our style of play and only go with five men. So we must get help from these players."

Chambers is a 6-5 senior from Greensboro, N.C.; Hanners is a 6-0 senior from Columbus, O.; Buckley is a 6-8 junior from Bladensburg, Md.; and Zaliagiris is a 6-5 sophomore from Livonia, Mich.

Other backup strength could come from Woody Coley and Eric Harry, who saw action with both the varsity and junior varsity last season, and any of Carolina's incoming freshmen.

The freshmen include scholarship players Keith Valentine of Richmond, Va.; Loren Lutz of Alamosa, Col.; Dudley Bradley of Edgewood, Md.; and Randy Wiel of Curacao, Netherlands Antilles. A non-scholarship freshman, guard Geb Doughton of Winston-Salem, N.C., is another possibility.

"Overall, I think we will be a fine offensive team," says Smith. "But, we must improve defensively if we hope to rank with other great Carolina defensive teams. We must also get some rebounding help for Kupchak if we hope to rebound with the other teams in the ACC."

Rebounding help could possibly come from 6-11 Geff Crompton of Burlington, N.C. Crompton sat out last season, but could be a big help if he's ready to go this year. He must overcome a weight problem, however, that has slowed him in the past.

The Tar Heel schedule is again challenging. Carolina will play on 10 difficult away-from-home courts in addition to facing national-finalist Kentucky, Seton Hall, Furman and Georgia Tech on neutral courts.
